DONATIONS FOR BUDDIES' HOMES CONSTRUCTION ARE SLOWLY COMING IN

People of Glendale Asked to Leave Checks With Delos Smith at Brand Boulevard Branch of L. A. Trust and Savings Bank

TOTAL OF $2,500 MAY BE NEEDED FOR FUND

Merchants' Sales Close Tomorrow, Which Places Purchase of Material Up to the People of This District to Raise the Amount

With the opening of the Five Buddies' Building Fund to donations from the people of Glendale yesterday, the first gifts began to arrive today at the Brand boulevard branch of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings company.

As a consequence, the sales at the thirty merchants' stores began to show signs of concentration.

Twenty-five hundred dollars is needed with which to purchase material for the buddy homes in La Crescenta. At the outset it was thought the material for these homes could be bought for $350 per home, but it has been found that $500 per home may be needed.

This all means greater effort, additional sacrifice and larger donations on the part of everybody.

There are but three sales left. The merchants have done all they can. It is now up to the people of Glendale to come through and supplement the work of the merchants—put over the little homes which stand all ready in intangible form, waiting for the material to come from you, the people of the city.

Cost material is offered by Gordon and Harrison of Wilson and Glendale avenue. The material they offer is plaster and the price, if you gather the money now through donations, will be practically nothing.

Naturally the Lathers' union has followed the lead of the other union men and have volunteered.

The dollars with which to build these buddy homes are coming, but they are not coming fast enough.

Now, residents of Glendale, it is up to you to come through and supplement the work of these merchants—to put over these little homes that already stand in intangible form, waiting for the material to come from you. People of Glendale, don't fail these buddies—they were faithful to you.

The sales for today will be:

The Welch Broadway Confectionery store, 604 East Broadway, where 2 per cent will go to the building fund of all candy sold today.

H. F. Brandenburg, watchmaker and jeweler, of 229¼ North Brand, will give 10 per cent of all business transacted today and tomorrow.

The Anderson Dry Goods company, at 516 East Broadway, will give 5 per cent of all business today. The sale is arranged for a big display which should bring good sales, for the prices are scaled to the market.

RABIES ORDINANCE PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

Drastic Law Passed to Protect Children From Possible Attack

The ordinance for the control of the rabies in Glendale was adopted by unanimous vote of the city council last night. The members of the council feel that any one child in Glendale is worth more than all the dogs in the country and in taking this step for the protection of the little ones, although some protest has arisen, they feel they are doing an excellent thing for their city.

At last night's meeting the city council decided that all of the employees who have been with the city for one year or longer shall be given a two weeks' vacation with pay some time this summer. In moving that these vacations be given Councilman Stevenson said:

"If there is a set of people in the world who are entitled to vacations with pay I think it is the employees of Glendale. They are all hard-working people and are doing their very best for this city. I, therefore, move that all employees who have been with the city one year or longer be given a two weeks vacation with pay."

This motion was seconded by Councilman Lapham and unanimously passed.

A resolution ordering in the improvement work on Kenilworth from Broadway to California by the Vrooman act was adopted.

A resolution of intention to improve Chestnut street from Adams to Sycamore Canyon road by the Vrooman act was adopted.

A resolution of ntention to improve Adams street (sidewalks) from Elk to Harvard street by the Vrooman act was adopted.

An ordinance of intention to open, widen and lay out Mariposa street from Palmer to Cypress was adopted.

A resolution of intention to improve Everett street from Lomita to Maple by the Vrooman act was adopted.

A communication was received from Dr. Harrower asking that the city refuse to accept the dedicated land for the opening of a street north of the projected extension of Harvard street was read and filed.

A protest against the muzzling of dogs was received from Mrs. John S. Knox, and was filed.

Two applications to sell milk were received. One was from Emery Warner at 724 East Acacia avenue, and the other from J. R. Mitchell of 705 South Verdugo road. A permit was granted in each case.

On the suggestion of City Manager Reeves $50 was set aside for the purchase of a Ford for use of the deputy city engineer and the purchasing department, this to be taken from public service fund.

An ordinance declaring the intention of the council to open and lay out Chestnut street from Adams to Glendale avenue, was adopted.

The adjourned hearing of protest against setting aside of the north side of Doran street between Geneva and Glendale avenue as a commercial district was held. On account of most of the territory protesting against this move the petition was denied.

The bid of F. W. Greiner, 518 South Brand boulevard, in the amount of $500 for a full and complete audit of the financial records of the city of Glendale for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, and of $600 for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1923, was accepted by the council last night.

REHEARSALS FILL CORRIDORS OF HIGH SCHOOL

Calls, Yells, Songs and Excitement Preludes Oratorical Contest

A large and well organized corps of cheerful volunteers is functioning at Glendale Union High school under the captaincy of Victor Colburn, who is efficiently directing activities in connection with the oratorical contest which comes off tonight.

When the reporter visited the school, big school choruses made up of the four classes were rehearsing class songs, each in its separate place, the peppy juniors having appropriated the auditorium. There, by lingering a bit in the hall, the theme of their vocal efforts could have a chance to know how dear she was to hearts of her classmates thus celebrating her virtues and talents in song.

As already announced, it will be held on the athletic field, the classes being seated on the bleachers, a section being allotted to each. Facing these a platform has been built up to serve as a rostrum for the speakers, and this is to be decorated appropriately. Facing the bleachers, in the pit, is a section of seats reserved for the visiting public. To guard against the colds to which some of the thinly clad characters in the class pageants might be exposed, the parades and the class floats will be judged immediately upon the entrance of the class, three judges not yet announced being appointed to pass upon booths, yells, songs, pageant and other spectacular features apart from the orations. The class members will then be expected to put on warm wraps. Visitors are also advised to come warmly dressed.

The orations have been sent to the heads of the English departments at Occidental, U. S. C. and Pomona college to be judged for composition and thought. Their

Hope for Tomorrow Is Theme of Advice by Philosopher-poet

It is well to have hope for tomorrow. This is the philosophical advice of James W. Foley as expressed by him this evening in his column, "The Listening Post."

He takes you back to the old days, the school days — and draws a lesson from them for use now.

Henry James in his comment on the news of the day speaks of straw hats and other kinds of hats and dates upon which they appear and what he has to say is tinged with just a bit of resentment.

Dr. Frank Crane speaks of the German mark and its relation to business and he says something must be done to stabilize the mark.

YE WHITE INN IS HOST TO EAST SIDE FRIENDS

Mrs. Thomas Entertains Glendale Advancement Association

Members of the East Glendale Advancement association met for luncheon at the newly opened Ye White Inn cafe of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas on South Brand, a special dining room having been reserved for their use. It was filled to overflowing with tables so close together that waitresses had difficulty in serving. After the association had voted to again meet there next Thursday, and after President Ingledue had urged a membership campaign to bring the enrollment to 1000, Dr. Stuart suggested that Mrs. Thomas be asked to transfer the west side patrons of her cafe to the special dining room and let the big east side have the right of way in the main dining room.

It was a kind of mark-time meeting, none of the committee chairmen having anything new to report though all stated they were at work with encouraging prospects.

When the postoffice committee was called upon, Dr. Henry R. Harrower announced there is a very good chance of putting a branch postoffice on the east side if a location can be agreed upon and all details to be submitted to the government can be thoroughly worked out. Said he:

"If we do not get it easily I will go to Washington myself and get it anyway. We now have a postoffice and I pride myself I had as much to do with securing it as even Mr. Rhoades of the chamber of commerce, although I did not get my photograph in the paper."

Dr. C. F. Stuart jumped in when Dr. Harrower paused to take breath to call attention to the political news from Indiana and warn his colleagues that Washington is liable to be Beveridge and not non-beverage as it was when he was there last; but several members, including President Ingledue, vouched for Dr. Harrower's

VERDUGO FOLKS MEET MAY 6

Will Consider the Gas Situation of Their District

The Verdugo Improvement Association will hold a meeting Saturday night, May 6, at 7:30 at Estes store on Canada boulevard, when several important matters will come up before the members and others interested in this beautiful residential section.

At this meeting the committee appointed to investigate the possibility of getting gas mains to the Verdugo Woodlands will make its report, which it is stated, will be to the effect that arrangements have been completed for the new improvement, and that gas will be put in at once to supply this rapidly growing section. A full attendance is urged at this meeting.

SUSPECT ARSON IN L,. A. RECORD FIRE

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—Fire Chief H. J. Griffin and city detectives today were pushing a vigorous investigation into an attempt to burn the Los Angeles Record building shortly before midnight.

Lath and paper were piled high against the rear of the building and ignited. Flanmes were discovered shooting to the height of the two-story structure by Charles Burkhart, a passerby, who called the fire department.

Patrolman C. R. Stevens, who arrived at the scene immediately after Burkhardt had turned in an alarm, saw two figures fleeing along the Pacific Electric's elevated tracks which parallel the newspaper building, and gave chase. They escaped.

VALLEY ROAD TO ENCIRCLE CITY WITH LIGHTS

Fifty Percent of Owners Join Move Toward Ornamental Poles

Before a great while the San Fernando boulevard from Pacific avenue south to Oxford street, the southern line of the city of Glendale, will be a blaze of illumination, if present plans do not miscarry. The ornamental lighting committee of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association, appeared before the Glendale council last night with a petition for ornamental lights along the San Fernando boulevard from Los Feliz road south to Oxford street, a distance of something like 3,000 feet. L. H. Wilson, chairman of the ornamental lighting committee stated this morning that more than 50 per cent of the property fronting on this highway from Los Feliz road to Oxford has been secured.

"Every property owner visited by us signed up for this lighting system," said Mr. Wilson. "There was not a person who raised any objection or who held out against us. According to present indications we will be able to secure at least 90 per cent of the property fronting on San Fernando boulevard if we continue our canvas to all of the owners of frontage on this highway. We are more than elated with the results we are receiving, and rejoice over the fact that before a great while the San Fernando boulevard will be 'the great white way' of Glendale."

In a former petition the property owners on San Fernando boulevard from the Los Feliz road north to Pacific avenue asked that that stretch be improved by ornamental lights. It is understood that the ornamental lighting work asked for in the two petitions will be done under the one set of proceedings, and that immediate steps will be taken to put this proposed system in operation at the earliest possible moment. When finished, this lighting system will extend over a stretch of 6,000 feet, with Los Feliz road as a central point.

The petition that was presented last night calls for the beautiful two-light standard that was decided upon for other ornamental lights in the city. It is claimed that for the money expended in the standards and the cost of furnishing "juice" after installation, the lighting system that has been decided upon cannot be surpassed.

The property owners along the San Fernando boulevard are right "on their toes" for this ornamental lighting improvement. They realize that these lights will put their section on the map for keeps, and that they will be a wonderful advertisement for Glendale in general.

"Watch us Grow," say the residents of San Fernando boulevard.

FIRST COMMUNION AT HOLY FAMILY

The first communion for the children of the HolyFamily Catholic Sunday school to be celebrated in the new church will occur Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

Joseph Huesman, altar boy, will lead, carrying the cross. The other five altar boys and the priest, Father James O'Neill, will bring up the rear of the procession of boys and girls.

In the evening at 7:30 the same processional will be repeated, the children gathering around the baptismal font to renew their vows. A sermon will then be preached by Rev. Nicholas Bell, vice president of Loyola college.

ADVENTISTS HOLD COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

First Class to Be Graduated Is Greeted Enthusiastically

Commencement exercises for the first class to be graduated from the Glendale (Seventh-Day Adventist) academy, were held in the Seventh-Day Adventist church last night. The rostrum was beautifully decorated with flowers and greenery in the class colors, old rose and green. The class motto, "Onward and Upward," in rose-colored lettering against a green background, was bordered with Russel roses and greenery.

The members of the graduating class are all planning on college work of some kind. Cecil Chrisman, class president, expects to take up work at Pacific Union college, the denominational school near St. Helena. Elizabeth Cook, class secretary, and Kathryn Waters, plan first for a business course and after that normal work. Iris Chrisman expects to take up a business course also. Henry Westphal will prepare for the ministry.

Miss Florence Voth played the march as the academy students took their places on the rostrum, together with the teachers and speakers for the evening. Singing by the congregation and a prayer offered by Elder F. W. Paap, were followed by a vocal duet by Miss Lillian Munson and J. Elwood Moore, with Mrs. W. J. Johnson at the piano. Evangelist Philip Knox from Los Angeles gave a interesting address, basing his thoughts and illustrations upon the class motto, "Onward and Upward." He counseled the class to press on to greater intellectual heights, comparing their course with that of a musician, who must press ever onward on he will lose what he already has. There is no floating upstream—it is a struggle. Elder Knox recounted his experience at Yosemite in scaling the heights to Half Dome, where a magnificent view of the falls and river may be had. But few ever reach the point he and his companions gained after exhaustive travel, but the grandeur of the view thus obtained repaid them for all their aching muscles. Here they heard the sound of the falling waters, each fall producing a different tone and valume, the effect being literally the music of nature.

He counseled the class to aspire to the greatest and best, and attain it.

Following Elder Knox's address Prof. Max Hill, principal of the academy, addressed the audience. He spoke in the highest terms of the moral and intellectual work of the students and expressed great pleasure at having been associated with the school the past two years. The class then received their diplomas from his hand, as follows:

Cecil Irving Chrisman.
Elizabeth Charlotte Cook.
Kathryn Ruth Waters.
Henry Joseph Westphal.
Iris Rowena Chrisman.

The concluding prayer was offered by Elder Rich, and friends crowded about the graduates with congratulations and good wishes. The graduates were the recipients of many beautiful presents, among which were several artistic baskets of flowers.

The junior class now numbers 22 which will make a much larger graduating class in 1923.

A New Servant

The introduction of natural gas into Glendale means that the big things are coming this way.

Natural gas spells manufacturing industries, payrolls.

It means permanent values, and it means extension of service throughout districts now barred, from actual lack of ability to keep up with the city's growth.

According to the Southern California Gas company, 200 meters are being installed a month, but this speed will be increased through the appropriation made by the corporation for this district, on representation, of course, of District Manager W. R. Phelon.

Corporations do not make such plans for extension of service until the progress of growth is indicated so clearly that there is absolute certainty of paying dividends.

The expenditure announced by the corporation, through Mr. Phelon, is the answer due about this time to those who have looked for a decline in local growth, feared that the speed of progress had been too accelerated.

With the opening up of the fast-growing north and northwest sections, the city will push on farther out in that direction, and the service will push on up through the canyons, sustaining land and home values permanently, removing them from the speculative status of unserved lots.

The rate for the natural gas will be upon a different scale from that of the mixed gas. This is as it should be, for the qualities of heat units will be increased.

The gas bill should be read on a basis of heat units, not upon footage basis. With a low wheat unit a big footage at a low price is a deceptive proposition. This is a side of the gas bill that is seldom viewed.

The Glendale Daily Press, first to announce the coming of natural gas to the city, is the first to extend it a hearty greeting, in the ranks of the servants of the city and the people thereof.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC ACCEPTS CITY'S $10,000 OFFER

Paving Problem of Lower Brand Boulevard Is Finally Solved

The Pacific Electric, answering the ultimatum issued by the city of Glendale regarding the lowering of tracks on Brand boulevard, has submitted two propositions, acceptable to it, one of which includes acceptance of the $10,000 as the city's share of the work to be done by the corporation. The acceptance is accompanied by modifications regarding other paving than between the tracks.

The propositions were submitted several days ago but the members of the city council have been reticent about giving any information regarding the plans of the corporation until one of the propositions had been accepted. Details were secured this morning from Hal Davenport, local real estate dealer, who is in close touch with all civic affairs and who has been particularly interested in having the Pacific Electric tracks lowered along Brand boulevard.

According to Mr. Davenport, one of the proposals made by the Pacific Electric through D. H. Pontius, vice president and general manager of the road, and Frank Karr, attorney for the company, is this: The Pacific Electric will lower its tracks along Brand boulevard from Colorado avenue to Windsor road and pave its right of way, providing the property owners or some one, presumably the city itself, gives the corporation $10,000, and that the property owners or some one paves the street without cost to the company up to the right of way of that company.

The other proposition, according to Mr. Davenport, is: The company will lower the tracks and leave the curbing along the right of way, to define the right of way, and not pave in between the

P. E. O. CHAPTER HOLDS MEETING

All Day Program at the Home of Miss Martha Cox

Chapter C. J., P. E. O., held its regular all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Miss Martha Cox, 624 South Central avenue.

The time from 10:30 a. m. until noon was occupied by a business session. "Mothers' day" was celebrated by the chapter, each member having her own mother or an "adopted mother" as her guest, presenting her with a white carnation as this verse of Mrs. Crampton's was read aloud:

"To you—each honored mother-guest,
Our tribute now we pay;
And place this emblem on your breast—
The flower of Mothers' Day."

The living and dining rooms of the home were fragrant with bowls of roses and gay with California poppies, and a tempting two-course luncheon was served at 12:30.

After luncheon, a charming bit of sentiment was expressed by the chapter in choosing Mrs. Sibelia Moule as "chapter mother" and she was presented with a bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses, accompanied by the following original verse by Mrs. Fannie Crampton:

"We love and hold you in our hearts,
As something sweet and rare;
Whose fragrance—like the rose—imparts
The richness hidden there."
And so, to hold you closer still,
And make the ties more near,
We're going to name and claim you as
Our 'chapter mother' dear."

The program of the afternoon was arranged by Mrs. Isabel Kimball and proved a rare treat. Mrs. Mary Allen Stafford, one of the founders of the sisterhood, and Mrs. Stella Carver, former state president, were special guests of the chapter. Mrs. Stafford in a

$150,000 TO BE SPENT IN GLENDALE BY SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY

Among Other Things, Service to Be Installed in North and Northwestern Sections of City Through Permanent Gas Mains and Pipes

TWO HUNDRED NEW METERS NOW AVERAGE

Induction of Natural Gas to City Will Be Followed by Great Saving to Consumer and Possibly Extension of Industries Here

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars will be spent by the Southern California Gas company in Glendale as the result of appropriations made in connection with the arrival of unmixed natural gas in Glendale, W. P. Phelon, district manager, announced today.

"The growth of Glendale has been such that we have been installing an average of 200 meters monthly," he said. "The betterment will be, among other things, in the nature of main trunks, and branch pipes throughout the growing sections of the city.

"For instance, we will put an eight-inch pipe from San Fernando road across to the Verdugo road, by way of Doran and Lexington. There will be a six-inch pipe run from Doran on San Fernando road to Sonora street, and a main on Eighth street east on Eighth to connect with two new four-inch pipes installed on Kenneth road effectually covering the growing north and northwest sections.

"The rate for the new service will give an increased heat of 33 1-3 per cent with practically an immaterial increase in the rate, so that it operates as a direct saving.

"The rate for the first 5000 feet will be only 85 cents, and the scale will run up to 50,000 feet at a cost of 60 cents.

"The history of every community where natural gas has supplanted the mixed gas, has been that considerably more fuel has been used, particularly in manufacture. We do not doubt that Glendale will show a like increase. With the new fuel it will not be necessary to burn so much gas to get the same result, since the heat units per cubic foot is so much greater."

NEW MEMBERS ARE RECEIVED INTO CHURCH

Mrs. Nelson Responds to Welcoming Address by W. E. McCormick

The quarterly reception for new members was held at the Presbyterian church last evening from 8 to 10 o'clock. The group for whom this reception was given have been received since the communion service of January, and were publicly received at the service last Sunday morning.

H. L. Finlay was in charge last evening. The program had been arranged by W. A. Horn and was as follows:

Piano solo, Mrs. N. E. Howton; readings by Mrs. D. C. Reynolds; solos by Samuel Glass of the Orpheus male quartet; cornet and piano selection by Mrs. G. F. Snyder and Miss Isabel Spear; duet by Mrs. Collins and Samuel Glass; selections on the bagpipes by Alex McDougall.

The welcome to the new members was extended by W. E. McCormick and the response for the new members was given by Mrs. C. M. L. Nelson. Every number was eagerly received by the audience, but the numbers on the bagpipes and the vocal selections by Mr. Glass were received most enthusiastically. Alex McDougall appeared in full Scotish costume and his parts were rendered most effectively.

After refreshments were served an hour was spent socially.

GLENDALE MILK IS VERY PURE

"The milk situation in Glendale is showing a marked improvement during the past month as regards bacteria count and general sanitation," said City Health Officer Dr. J. E. Eckles this morning. He said that Sanitary Inspector Hollenbeck is at present compiling a report, the result of a close investigation that shows the dairies of the city are making every attempt to produce milk as free from bacteria as possible and to produce it under the most sanitary conditions.

The milk produced at these dairies has been tested by a chemist and the bacteria in most cases has been remarkably low for the month. The official report of Sanitary Inspector Hollenbeck will be ready within a few days and will be published for the benefit of the general public.

ELKS' CALL IS HEARD THROUGH GLENDALE

First of "Men's Nights" Draws Audience of 600 From Hills

Congestion of Glendale streets was doubly congested Thursday night in the neighborhood of the Glendale Elks' lodge where all the cross thoroughfares as well as the main Colorado boulevard were parked with autos on both sides of the street.

It was the first of the recently instituted "men's nights" and was the more popular because athletic events, boxing, wrestling and like bouts constituted the program. An audience of 600 gathered in the lodge hall, made up of members from all parts of the district, and visitors from lodges in Los Angeles, Pasadena and other districts.

These "men's nights" are to be given once in two months and the programs will vary. Sometimes the program will be musical and dramatic, but it will always be of a character to be popular with members and make them feel they are getting their full money's worth.

Secretary Kimball is much pleased with the healthy condition of affairs in this lodge which is rapidly reducing its indebtedness in spite of the load assumed last year when it purchased property on Elk street to secure room for expansion when the time comes. That purchase rents well and takes care of itself so far as interest, taxes, etc., and when the lodge is ready to use the ground the bungalow can be moved onto another lot and continue to yield its income.

No building operations are planned at present except certain changes on the ground floor which will provide more room for the office, which is much cramped for space.

The next dance for members and their families has been set for May 20.

THE WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Saturday, fair, except cloudy or foggy in morning near coast.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Saturday with fog or clouds in the morning.

PUBLIC MARKET TO OPEN AT 207 N. BRAND

W. H. Miller Explains the Cancellation of Jap Lease

A public market will be opened at 207 North Brand boulevard, W. H. Muller, lessee, announced today. Stalls and equipment for the market will be installed in the premises formerly occupied by the Nash Sales Agency.

In making the announcement, Mr. Muller commented upon the cancelling of the lease formerly held by Roy T. Iwaki, owner of the Oriental Produce Co. Mr. Muller said:

"Owing to certain criticism by several merchants of this city to the owner of the building at 207 N. Brand Blvd., which was formerly occupied by the Nash Sales Agency, that part of said building was leased to the Oriental Produce Co. for their store No. 2 in Glendale by W. H. Muller of the realty office of J. G. Delozier, who has the lease on the entire building for three years from Mattison B. Jones, owner, said lease was cancelled yesterday, as it is the intention of both Mr. Jones and his lessee not to do anything that is not to the best interests of Glendale.

"Roy T. Iwaki, owner of the Oriental Produce company, is planning to open about ten stores in various parts of Los Angeles, Hollywood and Glendale, with first-class fruit, vegetables and flower markets, as he has operated about eight of the same kind of stores in Seattle, Washington, and when approached regarding the cancellation of the lease on North Brand boulevard, very courteously released the said owner and lessee from any obligation and stated that he did not wish to do business anywhere where he was not wanted, especially before he got started and had proven how he conducted his business.

returns will be turned over to three other judges appointed to pass on delivery.

The program is to open at 7:30 with the playing of a grand march by the newly organized high school band directed by Mr. Mulford, and it will play at intervals throughout the evening.

Classes will enter from the left and make the circuit of the pit in front of the platform before mounting to their places in the bleachers. They will come in the order of seniority, viz., the seniors first. One song and one yell will be allowed each class.

After all the classes have made their appearance, two verses of the school song, "The Black and Red," will be sung by all the students, to an accompaniment furnished by the band.

Lucy Strother, president of the student body, will make a brief speech of welcome and present Francis W. Read, winner of last year's oratorical, who will be the presiding officer of the evening.

That no contestant might have any advantage, they drew for places and luck favored Kathleen Campbell, representing the juniors, whose theme is "Foch, the Man." Next will come Fred Peck, sophomore, whose theme is "The Social Obligations of Man." Paul Hutchinson has third place with "The Trend of Civilization." Donald McMillan, the freshman, will be fourth with "Our Nation Today."

After the speeches there will be an open season or rally of yells and songs while waiting for the decision of the judges, and the award of the $20 gold piece to the winner.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC ACCEPTS CITY OFFER

tracks. The city will have to pay nothing, and the Pacific Electric will pave the crossings and bring them down to the present street level. The crossings are the only part of the right of way that the corporation will pave under this agreement.

According to a state law, any street railway corporation operating over a right of way similar to the one that is used in Glendale by the Pacific Electric is responsible for its share of the street paving the same as any property owner. The Pacific Electric, as it operates in this city, would, under this law, have to pay for the paving of half of Brand boulevard from Windsor road to Colorado avenue, as the right of way is considered abutting property. It is to avoid this that the two propositions were made by the corporation, it is believed. Mr. Davenport said this morning:

"If the proposition of the Pacific Electric to pave the right of way, not to pay for any street paving, and receive $10,000 is accepted, I believe that the corporation would make a little money out of the deal." He also said that the corporation should lower the tracks along Brand boulevard from San Fernando road to Colorado avenue and that, in his mind, the Pacific Electric should be willing to do this if the city of Glendale would abandon the idea of starting a municipally owned bus line.

At the city hall this morning members of the administration would say nothing regarding the proposals of the Pacific Electric other than that the officials of the corporation had made a proposition similar to the lines indicated in Councilman Davis' ultimatum, and that so far it appeared acceptable to the city. The city attorney and the attorney for the corporation have not, however, drawn up any agreement relative to this proposal or agreement and until both parties have signed the agreement both parties concerned are loath to talk.

GLENDALE PIONEER DIES IN L. A.

Judson L. Packard, who was many years ago one of the leading boosters in Glendale, having taken an active part in many of the progressive movements here, passed away several days ago at his home in Los Angeles. Mr. Packard was born in Jerico, Vermont, January 1, 1843, and removed with his parents in 1849 to Wisconsin. He moved to Los Angeles in 1903 and although he made numerous trips to and from Nebraska he felt that California was good enough for him.

For several years previous to his death Mr. Packard has been in ill health, but of late years was somewhat improved. On the day previous to his death he was in unusually good spirits, and visited with his son-in-law, Dr. F. E. Keep, who has been with him for some time. At midnight Dr. Keep went into the room and found Mr. Packard resting quietly, but in the morning it was found that between midnight and daybreak he had passed away.

Mr. Packard leaves, besides his widow, three sons: J. Lewis of Lincoln, Neb.; James and Gordon, both of Los Angeles, and one daughter, Mrs. F. E. Keep, Denver, Colo. The children all were present at the funeral. Services were held at the chapel near his home in Highland Park, and the remains were taken to the crematory at the Forest Lawn cemtery.

3:00 p. m.—Afternoon mass meeting. Topic: "What Is the Message of Victory in Christ?"

Dr. Ramsey is a Bible student and teacher of wide reputation and will be heard with pleasure by many who have heard him in other conferences. At the 4 o'clock hour Mr. McQuilkin will conduct a study in Christian Life problems. These studies have been most searching and helpful to many in the past and are being looked forward to with great anticipation by a large number of people who expect to attend the conference.

Don't forfeit the sweetness of life by keeping your nose forever on the grindstone of toil.

MRS. M. B. JONES RETURNS FROM FEDERATION

Honored by Nomination for Presidency She Is Almost Elected

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones has returned from the convention of the state federation of music clubs, held in San Francisco, where the president of the hostess club, Mrs. Birmingham, was elected to the presidency.

Yielding to the importunities of delegates from both north and south, Mrs. Jones allowed her name to be used as a candidate, and was defeated by only seven votes, Mrs. Birmingham naturally having a large northern following.

Mrs. Jones says she is glad on the whole it turned out that way as she did not want the work and responsibility the office entailed and because she had big plans for work in Glendale and the southern district on which she wished to concentrate.

Charles Gustling of Santa Ana was elected first vice president; Mr. Seyler was reelected treasurer; Mrs. Nicholson of Oakland was made second vice president, and the auditor was reelected. Other officers are appointive. The convention was well attended and proved quite an event for San Francisco.

After it closed Mrs. Jones was guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Palace hotel by Mrs. Donohue, democratic national committeewoman, who lives in Oakland. All the guests were representative women. Following the luncheon she was the guest of honor at a meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy at the Fairmont hotel, where she made an address and was afterwards entertained at an afternoon party.

She says she met many old friends and interesting new ones and had a good time all around.

Every man's task is his life preserver.

LODGES — CLUBS — CHURCHES

ST. MARK'S LADIES HAVE MERRY TIME AT MEETINGS

Working on the bazaar for the benefit of the church, the Women's Guild of St. Mark's church is holding enjoyable parties in the parish hall every Thursday. Sprightly wit flies as stitches rise and fall.

The work begins early and continues late, luncheon being the big event of the day, each lady bringing a sample of her own cooking and flowers from her own garden.

A wonderful collection of handwrought aprons, dainty and useful articles, is piling up for the big bazaar which will practically end the strenuous work of the year. All the women of the parish are always expected to attend a guild meeting. The attendance is usually over 20 of the representative Episcopal women of the city.

GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB CONCERT DATE

Members of the Glendale Music club, who have been inattentive to announcements of the change in the regular concert night this month, are beginning to call up officers to inquire about the when of the program.

Tonight is the regular date but because of the use of the high school auditorium in connection with the annual oratorical, it was not available for the music club. Next Tuesday was therefore selected as the substitute night when a very fine program will be given by the Burbank Choral club, which has been doing wonderful work the past year and made great improvement since last heard here.

There will be assisting solo artists Mrs. Sparrow, pianiste, who has been winning laurels by fine solo work throughout the state.

This program is given as a courtesy to the Glendale club which will reciprocate with a program for the Burbank organization which will include the best talent of our city.

This was followed by the regular missionary meetings, the program of the afternoon being in charge of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, led by Mrs. T. H. Wright in the absence of both the president and the vice president.

The subject for the program was "Africa," taken from the study book, "The Kinkdom and the Nation." Different parts were assigned to different members who took them up and discussed them.

At the close of this program, a business meeting of the Women's Home Missionary society, led by Mrs. Geiger, was held.

LADIES' AID OF CHURCH HOLD PARTY

The Ladies' Aid society of Central Christin church celebrated with its May birthday dinner on Thursday in the church bungalow. Thise whose birthdays were celebrated were Mrs. O. L. Kilborn, Mrs. Clifford Wykoff and Ruby Helen Jenkins.

It is the custom of the society, on the first Thursday of each month, to celebrate the birthdays that come during that month and those whose birthdays came during the previous month have charge of decorating the tables and serving the dinner. Those in charge this month were Mrs. Rider and Mrs. Andrew.

The long tables were beautifully decorated in roses and white wisteria and there were three beautiful birthday cakes. About 47 ladies sat down to the delicious chicken dinner, which was followed by a short business session. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing on orders for children's dresses and in quilting.

The society has offered to furnish the kitchen and dining room in the new church and plans regarding this were discussed.

RADIO CONCERT STIRS TROPICO

Tonight is the big night at the Tropico Presbyterian church on Central and Laurel streets, starting at 7:30 p. m. and lasting until 9 p. m. It marks an advance on the part of the Men's club of that church and it is needless to say that a treat will be assured with Glendale's own "Singing Mayor," heading the bill. Many people are still in doubt as to the operations of the radiophone which seems so impossible, so tonight affords those people a good chance to convince themselves, especially when the voice of Mayor Robinson travels through the air to those attending the concert. The concert which is given under the auspices of the Tropico Presbyterian Men's club, through the courtesy of the Glendale Daily Press, who are furnishing the set, will be as follows:

"Highland Laddie" and "Annie Laurie," selections rendered by Mayor Spencer Robinson.

Three songs by Thanton: (a) Idyl of Love, waltz ballad; (b) Gondoliers Love Song, Venitian Barcarolle; (c) Sweet Coleen, Irish ballad.

Violin obligato played by Miss Ethel Cohn.

The above program will be followed by the Examiner or the Earl C. Anthony Broadcasting station who are scheduled to send between the hours of 9 and 9:45 on a new wave length assigned them by the government. The Earl C. Anthony program, however, is not on the program and will be received solely for the benefit of those wishing to inspect the receiving set after the main concert which terminates at 9 o'clock. But keep in mind that the main program does not consist of even one phonograph record and that each selection will be rendered by these talented artists in person.

PRETTY NUPTIAL AT JONES' HOME ON ELK ST.

A very pretty home wedding took place on Wednesday, May 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Jones, 227 West Elk street, when Miss Velma May Thompson and Mr. Henry Robert Jones, both of Long Beach, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. Shawhan, of San Gabriel, who is an uncle of the bridegroom. The maid of honor was Miss Veda Thompson, sister of the bride, while Harold T. Jones, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

At 12 o'clock the bride and groom, with their attendants, entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Margaret Jones, and took their places before a bower of beautiful roses and ferns. The bride was charming in a white crepe and georgette dress, carrying a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore a blue silk with cream roses.

After the ceremony a delicious lunch was served. The table was prettily decorated with roses and bridal wreath. The bride's cake was artistic with orange blossoms and topped with an ornament of white doves.

Those present to witness the ceremony were the immediate members of both families and a few intimate friends from Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones left the same evening for a trip by boat to San Francisco where they will make a short visit before taking up their residence in Long Beach.

D. A. R. ENTERTAINED AT HOME OF MRS. H. A. STRONG

Members of the General Richard Gridley chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, were entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Strong, 339 North Louise street, for their annual election.

In the absence of the chapter regent, Mrs. J. H. Braly, the vice regent, Mrs. C. W. Houston, presided. A charming setting for the meeting of this patriotic organization had been provided in the bouquets of red, white and blue flowers with which the hostess had decorated her home.

A number of committee reports were received, Mrs. Rathbun, chairman of philanthropy, reporting 24 articles of clothing turned over to the salvage store of the maternity cottage which has been the special object of benevolence of the chapter.

Miss Myers, chairman of Americanization, reported 179 articles of clothing donated by the chapter for the Albion street school and a large number of jars of canned fruit, jelly and dried fruit which had been used in the cafeteria where many poor children are fed.

Mrs. Houston announced that Mrs. Stuckey, state regent of California, had appointed Miss Myers state chairman of conservation and thrift, and she was congratulated by her fellow members, who realized her fitness because of the good work she has been doing in practical Americanization work at the Albion settlement.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Regent, Mrs. J. H. Braly; vcie regent, Mrs. C. W. Houston; secretary, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker; treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Strong; registrar, Mrs. M. L. Patterson; historian, Mrs. F. H. Butterfield; chaplain, Mrs. Gertrude Follansbee.

Ever since the illness of the regent began the chapter has remembered her with flowers on its meeting day. On this occasion a potted red rose was sent with loving greetings.

Mrs. Wells, sister of Mrs. Braly, made a brief talk on Americanization and Mr. Braly, who was present, made a resume of his experiences during early days in California. By special request he told the story of how Oregon was saved to the Union by Whitman, who planted the flag of the United States before England, which coveted the territory, had opportunity to do so.

At the close of this interesting program, refreshments of tea and cake were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Justice who have been spending the past month at San Diego, are at home again at 326 East Colorado street.

Truths in Epigram

And though hard be the task, "Keep a stiff upper lip."—Phoebe Cary (1824-1871).

Better by far you should forget and smile than that you remember and be sad.—Rossetti (1830-1894).

One man's wickedness may easily become all men's curse.—Syrus (42 B. C.).

LAND LAW UNDONE

The supreme court of the state has declared unconstitutional a portion of the land law. This is the part forbidding the appointment of aliens as guardians of their children, the children being native-born, and thus entitled to citizenship rights. It is too early to grasp the full effect of this. If the state, by the decision, is cut off from the privilege of barring immigrants deemed to be undesirable, and regulation is to be left to Washington alone, there is no prospect of regulation. If California may not put up the bars against the brown men of the Orient, there will be no bars.

Throughout the country there is no understanding of the Japanese question, no belief in the menace of the influx. The efforts of the Pacific coast to protect itself, have not been accepted as in good faith, and yet they have been put forth in good faith. The desire to retain the Pacific states as American territory is a proper and legitimate desire. Its expression has been misconstrued by people at a distance who have no knowledge of the facts.

When Japan decides that any element of its population is not wanted, it expels the individuals in question. Only recently it sent a large number of Chinese back to China. It guards its entrances against foreign invasion. Nobody questions its right to do this. The people of the Pacific coast, realizing the situation to be desperate, and refused aid from other quarters, hoped to protect themselves. Seemingly their efforts in this direction are to be less effective than they had hoped.

THE SOCIALIST MOVEMENT

There is an endeavor in Europe to unite the sundered factions of the socialists. It is hoped to gather into one fold Germans headed by Ebert, Russians headed by Lenine, and even Swedes under the leadership of Branting, premier. It is no wonder than in war-torn Europe, the elements of discontent should drift to a common center. It does not seem, however, that Sweden has any natural place in the combination. The movement may be regarded with academic interest. The elements cannot coalesce permanently. They would separate instantly if such seemed to be the suggestion of local interest.

In this country the socialist party no longer is of impressive size. It hardly needs to bs reckoned as a political factor. When it went to smash as the inevitable result of national patriotism aroused by the war, the wreck was complete. With so few exceptions as not to be worth mentioning, those who stayed by the wreck were disloyal. Some were blatant pacifists, others openly pro-German. Victor Berger, Rose Pastor Stokes and more of that ilk, remained staunch to the destructive principles of socialism. They went to jail, not because of being socialists, but because, being socialists, they were traitors to their country. They were freed while far from deserving freedom, a lenient government choosing to let them go, on the pretext of technicalities that were without merit.

Even this remnant of an organization is trying to get a fresh start through uniting in some way with labor. The presumption is fair that labor is too shrewd to be used to pull socialist chestnuts out of the fire. Unless labor should be guilty of the folly of listening to the overtures, the socialist party must remain a thing of the past. The past is the proper setting for it.

RUSSIA STILL ON THE OUTSIDE

Secretary Hughes recently had a visit, or it might be termed a visitation, from a delegation of women demanding full political recognition of Russia. He received them with every courtesy to be extended by a gentleman and diplomat. He was suave, but quite unyielding, in being so displaying admirable qualities that he had been known to possess.

Mr. Hughes said that Russia must first adopt a policy of sound internal reconstruction. He said that Americans were deeply concerned for the welfare of Russian people. So they are, as they have proved abundantly. They pity them for the serfdom to which they have been condemned by an oligarchy. They have spent, and are spending millions to feed the victims of soviet rule. Russia is quite welcome to have any form of government it may deem desirable, but the regime that it has, or that has it, is not a government.

That the principle of self-government in Russia was somewhat complicated by the efforts of soviet officials to interfere in the domestic affairs of other nations was one of the observations of Mr. Hughes. It must have sent the callers away thinking, if so be they are adequately provided with the mechanism of thought.

The soviets are an aggregation of busybodies. They have shown themselves utterly incapable of conducting their own business, yet seek to govern the business of the earth. When sanity rules in Russia will be the earliest moment for political recognition.

NOT AN IMPRESSIVE DECISION

A recent decision of the supreme court held that the emergency fleet corporation may be used in federal and state courts without its consent. This is to say, it does not have immunity as a government department or board. The members of the corporation are reported as being "shocked." The people at large will be quite free from such emotion, and, indeed, likely to be incited to only a moderate interest. There is one point about the decision, however, that may cause them to think.

Either a certain course is legal or it is not. There are statutes for determination which. There are tribunals for interpretation of the statutes. Presumably the laws are made by intelligent men, although of not the degree of intelligence that is able to devise language that may not be twisted and misconstrued. Hence the necessity for the tribunal authorized to find and proclaim the essence of the law. But apparently the judicial mind needs exactitude. It deals with elements lacking the precision of mathematics. Its opinion is colored by personal sentiments, or by political training.

In the decision mentioned, the court was far from being unanimous. The majority rules, of course, but a mere majority is unable to set up a condition of popular faith. The question is not closed, though debate is silenced. There was a dissenting minority opinion, shared in by Chief Justice Taft and two others of the supreme bench.

If judges cannot agree as to the intent and effect of a law, the poor layman naturally is in the dark.

There seems no occasion for excitement over the rumored deal in Russian oil. It is better for the world to have the Russian field producing. If the Shell company can make the soviet government keep a bargain, it will go far towards civilizing that strange combination. As for the new arrangement interfering with Standard oil, it is well to remember that Mr. Rockefeller and his associates are not amateurs, and have no tendency to permit rivals to catch them napping.

Congressman Lineberger is quoted (in the Hearst papers) as expressing various and inconsistent views concerning Senator Johnson. It might be wise for the gentleman to issue a statement, give it to a reputable purveyor of news, and so let his constituency have a glimpse at the facts of the case.

Lady Astor urges Christianity in industry as a method of avoiding dissension and promoting the welfare of all concerned. The sentiment naturally evoked applause, for it always does. The excellence of the theory is so fully recognized as to require no supporting argument. However, it remains a theory, with here and there the rare individual who has put it into practice, and thereby won the reputation of being odd.

Bandits are getting money in large sums in a rather simple fashion. They merely observe that such sums are being transported without safeguard, and take it away from the boy or unarmed man who carries it. After while, it is possible, owners of wads of money will learn that evil souls covet the same, and are adept and unscrupulous.

There can be no doubt that the people of this state utterly repudiate the ku klux, that they deny that there is any excuse for the existence of the illegal organization, and that it will be abated to the final goblin and the ultimate kleagle. Doubtless it came into being as a financial scheme in which the promoters divided huge profits. It was not honest in its statement of purpose, and it even took a name which gave a false idea as to its character.

THE CAPERING MARK

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The mark is the German unit of currency as the dollar is ours.

Owing to a variety of causes concerning which no two European statesmen agree and over which they are all shaking their fists and cursing each other, the mark has been capering up and down ever since the close of the war.

DR. FRANK CRANE

That is, one week a loaf of bread might be worth a fraction of a mark and the next week it might be worth several marks, one summer your income might enable you to live in ease and the next summer it might send you to the breadline.

The result of this is that the vast majority of the German people is being plunged deeper into misery, as the value of the mark in purchasing power becomes less and less.

The shopkeeper is in despair for in spite of his yearly profits he may find that he has almost lost his capital. The man who has saved up money against a rainy day finds that funds have melted and it is raining hard.

There is no incentive for any one to save money when he has no idea what his money will be worth after it is saved. The consequence is that profligacy is increasing. The jazz horns blow, the dance grows furious and the pillars of society are shaking.

The only people who are making money are speculators.

People whose incomes come from foreign countries in the shape of dollars, pounds and francs find themselves becoming rapidly rich. That is to say, those who make their money in dollars and spend it in marks are living in plenty, while those who must make their money in marks are threatened with poverty.

The cost of living mounts rapidly.

In the last year, although Germany is the greatest potato growing country in the world, the price of potatoes increased sevenfold.

The price of other commodities has gone up much faster. Statistics show that wages have advanced from sixteen to thirty times the pre-war level, but the cost of living has advanced 100 per cent or more.

An ordinary suit of clothes which in 1913 cost from 40 to 60 marks now sells for around 1500 marks and the price is still going up.

Shoes which before the war brought 12 marks are now valued at 400 marks.

Thus food stuffs that have to be imported from abroad naturally cost more because they have to be bought with a more valuable currency, but the foodstuffs produced in Germany sympathetically rise also to higher price levels.

The great mass of the German people are today more interested in the rise and fall of the mark than they were interested in the varying fortunes of the German armies during the war.

The only class that is encouraged by this state of things consists of loafers, agitators and bolsheviks.

Unless something is done to stabilize the mark the German, western civilization is going to add considerably to its area of desperate bolshevism which, at bottom, is really the propaganda of envy, insanity and despair.

THE LISTENING POST

Maybe you remember the old days.
When you had been in school through the day.
And there were long lessons for tomorrow.
The teacher had indicated a dozen sums.
Forty or fifty inches of history.
And a long slice of geography.

Some grammar and spelling and other things.
And you must be prepared on the following day.
Perhaps you had a headache in the evening.
Your spirit was a bit low.
Yet you lighted the lamp.
And started on the sums.

But they were hopelessly mixed.
The answers would not come.
Your multiplications and additions and calculations were inaccurate.
You got different results pretty nearly every time.
And were discouraged.

You pulled your hair.
Rubbed your wrinkled little forehead.
Put your pencil end in your mouth.
Screwed up your eyes.
And wondered what was the matter.
That your sums would not come right.

And after while Somebody came.
Saw the pulled forelock and the wrinkled forehead and puzzled look.
And the utter hopelessness of your air.
Shut up the book.
Took away the pencil.
And said: "It will come all right in the morning, my boy. You are a little tired tonight. Put the sums away."

* * *

And how often since have you thought of it.
On the following morning your head was clear.
The headache was gone.
The world seemed brighter and fairer.
And the sums came easily.

And it is typical of life.
With its problems, which are the sums you had as a schoolboy.
With the ledgers or the plans or the sketches or the balance sheets and the profit and loss.
Which are the history and geography and grammar.

The thing seems all tangled up.
There is puzzlement and weariness.
Nothing seems to come right.
For you have worried and fretted so long it is all a hopeless snarl.

And then you need somebody to come along as Somebody did in the old days.
Put away the book for a while.
See that you get some rest.
Prove to you that tomorrow it will be easier.
And get you to bed.

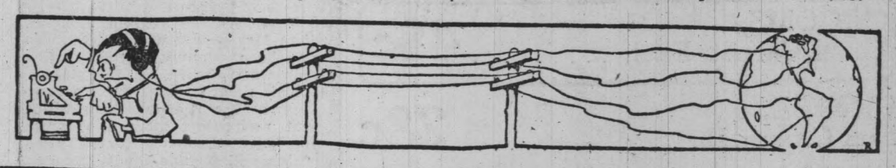
Perhaps you've worried today.
Gone home with a weight of care.
And you want to remember that it is well to have hope for the morrow.
Put away the sums for a little while.
As the schoolboy did.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

The Earth and Man—Stopford Augustus Brooke (1832-1916)

A little sun, a little rain,
A soft wind blowing from the west—
And woods and fields are sweet again,
And warmth within the mountain's breast.

So simple is the earth we tread,
So quick with love and life her frame;
Ten thousand years have dawned and fled,
And still her magic is the same.

A little love, a little trust,
A soft impulse, a sudden dream—
And life as dry as desert dust
Is fresher than a mountain stream.

So simple is the heart of man,
So ready for new hope and joy:
Ten thousand years since it began
Have left it younger than a boy.

On Sunday, May 5, we open

'TREND OF TIME' WINS APPLAUSE IN CONCERT

Business Women's Club Scores Triumph With Girard Program

The concert given by the Girard-La Bonte quartet Thursday evening in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club, was one of the finest, most interesting musical programs that has been given in Glendale this year. It was full of pleasant surprises which made every member of the audience wish that all his or her friends might have been there to enjoy it.

The singers were fortunate in having a rather wonderful pianist as an accompanist—Mr. Homer Simmons, who played most beautifully and greatly delighted the audience in the group of three compositions which constituted the second number.

The evening's enjoyment climaxed in Mr. Girard's own composition, the lyrical idyl he has termed "The Trend of Time," because it is a series of twelve songs dedicated to the months of the year and suggestively descriptive of them.

The music is simply captivating in its melody, variety, and its general charm, which cannot be described. While those who came expected to be rewarded with some very good music, the increasing applause as the compositions proceeded demonstrated that the listeners were carried away by the pleasure of the moment. "January" was sung in solo by Mr. Girard and was an exquisite interpretation. February ("Alla Capella") commanded the entire quartet. Gusty, strenuous March afforded beautiful duets by tenor and baritone, soprano and contralto.

April was given an artistic interpretation in a song without words by Mr. Simmons. May was a stirring song of the sea in which the full quartet did effective work. June, the one tenderly sentimental number, celebrating the rose, was sung in solo by Mr. La Bonte.

July was omitted, the composer stating that he was not satisfied with it, that he did not consider it up to the standard of the other numbers, and that he proposed to write a substitute some day.

August, an appeal to get away from musty books and rest, was a dreamy composition in which Mme. La Bonte's beautiful contralto was heard in solo. It strongly contrasted with September's challenge to labor, sung in quartet.

Then came October, the harvest number, beautifully sung by Mr. Girard, and followed by November's jolly hunting song by the quartet.

"December," with Mrs. Girard singing the Christmas aria, reinforced by the quartet, made a fitting finish to a work of Mr. Girard's ambitious youth. He says he wrote it 23 years ago when he had ideals. When his friends pressed their congratulations upon him after the concert he was reproached for not having written more. In defense he said he had a trunkful of manuscripts and proposed to get down to work now and make some use of them.

Following is the program as outlined:

"Solvejg's Song" ....Edward Grieg
Harry Girard

Piano solos—
Etude in F Major.....Bortkiewicz
London Bridge".....Balfour Gardiner
"Etude in D Flat".....Liszt
Homer Simmons

Vocal solos—
"She Rested by the Broken Brook," words by Robert Louis Stevenson and music by Samuel Coleridge Taylor, a negro composer of distinction.
"On the Road to Mandelay....Speaks
Henri La Bonte

Lyrical Idyl—
"The Trend of Time," composed by Harry Girard, and presented by the Girard-La Bonte quartet: Agnes Cain-Brown (Mrs. Harry Girard), soprano; Madame La Bonte, contralto; Harry Girard, basso cantante; Henri La Bonte, tenor.

SENNETT ACTORS IN VAUDEVILLE

Tonight at 8:45 there will be staged at the T. D. & L. theatre a special vaudeville act played by no less persons than Bud Ross and Dick Smith, the Mack Sennett comedians, who will offer their successful comedy laughfest entitled "Smart Fools." It's a scream and like "Fox and Fletcher," the T. D. & L. special presentation of last week, is a whole show in itself.

For a good laugh and a real big time vaudeville act, there is a treat in store for those who see these funny fellows who make a serious business of making people laugh.

Also, Grant Rymal, the composer, will sing his latest popular composition.

On the screen the attraction will be Katherine McDonald in the First National picture "Her Social Value."

IRISH LINEN STORE "SURPRISE SALE"

The Irish Linen Store, always progressive, has started something new.

Beginning Saturday, they have "declared a Surprise Sale," the idea being to "clean house" and keep their stock "up to the minute."

Everybody likes "surprises," and from the long reputation of the Irish Linen Store for quality, the "surprises" should be unusually pleasant. It will certainly pay to investigate.

H. L. MILLER IN NEW LOCATION

H. L. Miller and his large force are now comfortably located in their new offices at 109 South Brand, the old stand Mr. Miller vacated several weeks ago in order that it might be converted into a better office and that a new front might be put in. The new offices present an appearance that indicate Mr. Miller has spared neither pains nor money to fit up offices that are second to none in Glendale, and are truly in keeping with the growth of the business district.

The rapidly growing business of Mr. Miller has made it necessary for him to make changes to take care of a bigger business. His insurance business alone is enormous, as he has about twenty companies, and it is stated, writes more insurance than many of the big city agencies. His real estate business has also grown rapidly, and being a long time resident of Glendale he has been able to develop this line in a manner that has given the public entire confidence in his judgment and ability to make money for his clients along the investment line. He can save the property owner as much as 20 per cent on insurance which is a big item, and which is largely responsible for bringing to him such a large business. He has never failed to promptly take care of any losses, and in most instances has given his personal check before the insurance adjusters came around. This shows the confidence the big companies place in Mr. Miller's ability and fairness, and they never yet have failed to back up his actions in settling with policy holders. Mr. Miller has a capable and trained force in the insurance department as well as the realty end of the business, and is always glad to give information to tourists or others interested in Glendale. Being a man of rare judgment Mr. Miller has steered many people right in making investments, and his friends and boosters are numbered by his acquaintance.

He plans to redouble his efforts in looking after the wants of property owners needing insurance, and others desiring to make profitable investments. He extends a cordial invitation to his friends and the public to visit his new quarters at any time. Increased space, better display windows and other added facilities gives Mr. Miller a big leverage in his business and also adds very much to the appearance and stability of Glendale's business district.

SPANISH WAR VETS INSTITUTE FINE AUXILIARY

Mrs. Elizabeth Hall Is Installed as President of New Unit

Under highly auspicious conditions Glendale Auxiliary No. 36, Department of California, United Spanish War Veterans, was organized with the election of a staff of officers Wednesday evening at American Legion hall on East Broadway, with 23 charter members present.

It was the regular meeting night of the Glendale camp, U. S. W. V., and a majority of the comrades were present. After the camp had been formally opened, Commander Reeves turned the meeting over to Mrs. Bertha Martens, who was to be the organizer of the new auxiliary and who is the president of the Roosevelt auxiliary in Los Angeles. She and her fellow officers in that organization made a beautiful picture as they carried out the floor work of the order. All were in white, the flags carried by the color bearers furnishing a contrasting note of color.

The installing officer was Lois Rollins, national patriotic instructor. Members of the staff of the Glendale auxiliary installed by her were:

President, Elizabeth Hall; senior vice president, Mary Russell Hill; junior vice president, Alberta C. Merrihew; chaplain, Helen M. Mead; assistant conductor, Rose N. Harness; guard, Alice V. Barrick; assistant guard, Evelyn Young; patriotic instructor, Bessie Mabry; historian, B. May Oliver. Miss Pearl Barrick was appointed treasurer.

Following these ceremonies short talks were made by Commander Reeves of Glendale, Assistant Inspector General Edward Schulz, Department Commander Morgan Galbraith, Department Adjutant B. L. Upham, Commander King and Ensign Bagley of Pasadena, Auxiliary Department Chief of Staff Lillie Archer, Department Guard Mary Kimble, National Aide Josephine Galbraith, members of the department council and department aides, Past Department President Carrie Krouse, Sister Conley, president of Admiral Glass auxiliary of Los Angeles.

The new auxiliary was also the recipient of something more substantial than congratulations, advice and admonition, for it received from the Roosevelt auxiliary an altar flag. Guidons were also presented to the Glendale camp.

To start off the new organization with some money in its treasury, on motion of Mrs. Martens a penny march was instituted which netted $13.35.

COSTS 10,000 TO SEND LETTER HERE

But It Is in Russian Money Worth Very Little

WOODLAND, Cal., May 5.—Within a period of 30 days the price of postage between Soviet Russia and the United States tripled, if two letters received here by Henry Storz within that time are any indication.

A month ago Storz, who owns a farm a short distance outside of Woodland, received a letter from Russia bearing 10,000 rubles in postage. A few days ago Storz received another letter bearing 30,000 rubles postage.

If the ruble were worth what it was before the war, the 30,000 rubles postage would amount to about $18,000.

The letters had to have trailers in long strips of paper to carry the immense amount of postage, and were a rare sight.

BREAD ON WATER RETURNS WINNER

LONDON, May 5.—A bookmaker, fined in a local police court for street betting, owed his fall to his own honesty and his betrayer's charitableness. A Kensington woman saw from a window a shabbily dressed man standing at the street corner. Occasionally a passerby would stop and hand him some money. Touched, the woman wrote a hurried note, "Never say die," and placing it in an envelope with a two-shilling piece, went out and gave it to the man. Three days later, returning from a shopping expedition, she was stopped by the man, who said: "Here you are, lady—24 shillings. 'Never Say Die' won at 11 to 1." While she was obtaining an explanation from her unexpected benefactor, a policeman joined the conversation.

Western Auto Supply Company opens local branch store here ~

Interior of the Western Auto Supply Co. store in Los Angeles

Meet "Saving Sam"

"Saving Sam" is the name of the smiling little man pictured above. He is trade-character for the Western Auto Supply company and represents their policy of "saving and serving with a smile." He is always on the job, saving money for motorists, and serving them with the best in auto supplies.

"Western Auto's" new local branch store, which will open on Saturday at 205 South Brand boulevard, is the latest addition to Glendale's auto row.

The best way of serving motorists, claims the manager of this new auto supply store, is to have on hand a complete, fresh stock of all accessories and supplies so that the auto owner can get just exactly what he wants, when he wants it, and at a price that he is willing to pay. This company's tremendous volume of business and the rapid turn-over in 50 stores makes possible a "factory-to-you" distribution plan that not only insures complete, fresh stocks but also makes possible prices that are substantially lower.

This merchandising plan does away with brokers' and jobbers' profits which are passed along to the ultimate consumer and is largely responsible for the remarkable growth of this concern, according to the manager.

The growth of the Western Auto Supply company is a most unusual and remarkable one, and its history reads more like fiction than fact. George Pepperdine, who is president of this largest organization of its kind in the Western United States, was recently asked to tell how he got his start. He said:

"When I first started with a desk in a garage in Kansas City, just 13 years ago, my capital consisted of about $5 and a lot of nerve. However, with this nerve I secured a consignment of $100 worth of merchandise and went to work, and while in those days there were not as many automobiles as there are today, they needed accessories then just as they do now, and it was not long before my first stock was exhausted and I was fairly on the road to building up a big business.

"Getting an idea and sticking to it, giving the public something they want and need, giving them quality merchandise and, above all, always keeping faith with them, is, I believe, the explanation for the continual growth of our business, the business which grew from a desk in a garage in Kansas City to one of the largest in the world in the short space of 13 years."

Today the Western Auto Supply company owns and operates 50 large and completely stocked auto accessory stores in every important western city—Bakersfield, Bellingham, Boise, Colorado Springs, Denver, El Centro, Everett, Fresno, Greeley, Hollywood, Long Geach, Los Angeles, Oakland ,Pasadena, Pomona, Phoenix, Portland, Pueblo, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Francisco, San Jose, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Stockton, Spokane, Tacoma, Walla Walla, Salem, Yakima—and the latest link in this large chain of stores is forged with the opening of the new Glendale store at 205 South Brand boulevard.

The local manager of Glendale's newest and best equipped auto supply store extends a hearty invitation to motorists to come in and get acquainted. with "Saving Sam" and his policy of "service and saving with a smile."

MORAL CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA ARE IMPROVING

Correspondent Writes Encouragingly From Moscow

MOSCOW (by mail to United Press), May 1.—Immorality is on the decline in Russia, according to statements by Nicolas Semashko, commissar of public health, in an interview with the United Press.

The Soviet administration has introduced the American policy of open warfare against vice. Segregated districts were abolished, houses of prostitution were closed, and the famous yellow tickets, issued by the czar's officials to unmoral women as indication that the possessor had fulfilled all the requirements of the law, were annulled. Women of easy morals were obliged to go to work.

Arrests succeeded in driving vice under cover, even more effectively than in the United States, but owing to living condiitons and the general demoralization of life caused by the revolution, immorality could hardly be said to be on the decrease.

Child immorality rose to alarming proportions following establishment of co-educational schools. As society adjusted itself to the new conditions, however, and the Soviet campaign against vice tightened, the first wave of licentiousness began to subside, Semashko said.

Semashko admitted that the new economic policy, reviving the old problem of unemployment, has been accompanied by a certain increase in immorality. Thousands of women, who have been working in government offices since 1917, have been discharged and sent out into the city without any means of support. A large proportion have not as yet been able to find employment.

Conditions now cannot be compared, however, with conditions before the war, when virtually no governmental effort was made to fight immorality," he said.

Certain it is that on the surface Moscow is the cleanest city in Europe from the moral viewpoint. It is the only large continental capital whose streets are not an open market for women of easy virtue. Holland and several of the Scandinavian countries do not legalize vice, but are the continental exceptions.

"The illegitimate child problem has been removed by changing the birth registration laws in such a way that the mother of a child born outside wedlock can have her infant made legitimate by registering it officially at the health department. This gives the child the same legal standing as an infant born in wedlock. The mother also has the right to name the father and demand that he recognize his offspring publicly," Semashko said.

CAT SCARES RAT OUT OF HIS HIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—Donald Myatt, 13, walked into the Central Emergency hospital carrying a peculiar looking animal under his arm.

"Jerboa his jumped out of his skin," he told the attendants. "Can't you please fix him for me?"

Jerboa proved to be Donald's pet Egyptian jumping rat. Examination proved that all the bark was off Jerboa's tail, as the lad explained. Donald held the empty skin in his hand.

"I was showing him at the animal show," Donald explained, "and a cat sizzed at him, and he got scared and jumped. I was holding onto hs tail, and all the skin came off."

The emergency hosptal staff "hum-m-m-ed" and scratched its collective head, but in the end, as might have been expected, it was equal to the emergency.

Jerboa was put onto an operating table, and while a nurse held both his feet a skilful surgeon sewed the skin back on his tail. And Donald left happy, with his pet under his arm.

On the hospital records the affair appeared as: "One rat—retailed!"

WAR HERO A THIEF

LONDON, May 4.—The most talented and picturesque thief appearing in a London court in many years—Edwin Hart, an author, a war hero, and a linguist, has been sentenced to four years penal servitude. He pleaded guilty to a series of jewel thefts. Hart joined the French Foreign Legion in 1914, and was wounded on three occasions. In 1919 he wrote a book on the war. Last year he returned to England and began his life of crime. He speaks seven languages.

JUST WAIT FOR PEACE

LONDON, May 5.—Life will be worth living some time during the period 5500-16000 A. D. "War will disappear in A. D. 5500, and crime will simmer down to vanishing point during the gap between A. D. 6000 and A. D. 16000," Lord Clifford of Chudleigh said in a lecture on "A New Hypothesis of Creation," before the Societe de Philologie, Science et Beaux Arts.

OSCILLATORY DISCHARGE

Influence of Resistance—The action on discharge of the condenser is then as follows: The condenser discharges across the gap through the inductance, but in so doing it creates a powerful magnetic field about the inductance which reaches its maximum at the same instant that the current reaches zero. The energy that was previously represented by the charge of the condenser is now in this magnetic field, less any losses caused by the resistance. But as there is no longer any current to maintain it, the magnetic field is reconverted into an electrostatic field in the inductance and rushes back into the condenser to recharge it in opposite direction. This alternate conversion from electric to magnetic energy and back again takes place as many times as the inductance and the capacity of the circuit are able to overcome its resistance, producing a current curve. Two alterations complete each oscillation, the highest poetential attained by the latter representing its amplitude. The time interval between two successive oscillations is their period, while the decrease in amplitude from one oscillation to the succeeding one is damping, so that its extent indicates the amount of loss between succeeding cycles.

Oscillation Circuit—In order to distinguish the oscillation circuit from the aerial or the radiating circuit of the transmitting set, it is known as the closed oscillation circuit. In order for such a circuit to be oscillatory in character when its condenser is charged from a source of high-poetential alternating current, causing it to discharge through the spark gap, the resistance of the circuit must be less than twice the square root of the inductance divided by the capacity. If the resistance is greater than this factor the circuit will be known as a non-oscillatory circuit, while if it is equal to this value, it will be oscillatory, but the oscillations will be very strongly damped. This is known as the fundamental equation of wireless telegraphy. In actual practice the various elements of the closed oscillation circuit are connected by copper tubing, flat strips of copper or heavy stranded copper wire, and the spark gap is very small, even with high power, so that the resistance of the circuit is held down to a very low value.

Oscillation Frequency — It has been demonstrated that electricity travels with the same rate of speed as light, that is, 186,000 miles per second, which is equivalent to 300,000,000 meters, and as the oscillations are all represented by what appears to be a brief spark, it will be apparent that the rapidity with which these oscillations occur is very great. The number per second is known as the oscillation frequency, which may reach 1,000,000 or more, so that the time element is represented by the abscissa may be .000001 second or less. The oscillation frequency of a circuit varies inversely. As the frequency is also inversely proportional to the wave length of the oscillation emitted by the circuit, it follows that the wave length of any circuit may be increased by adding either inductance or capacity. This increases the time period between two oscillations. The current in the circuit damps down or dies out when the E. M. F. (electro motive force) which established it is removed. In a circuit containing resistance, inductance and capacity, the frequency of the natural wave length depends entirely upon the inductance and the capacity, provided that four times the inductance is large compared to the product of the capacity and resistance squared. The damping constant is directly proportional to the inductance.

CODE CLASS TONIGHT

Those whose names were published in last evening's paper please be present so that the class may be divided properly. The class last evening did very well and five in the class have qualified for faster work.

A LITTLE DOPE ON "B" BATTERIES

The 20-year-old story of the motorist who had several parts of his car left over after he had finished reassembling it, is being paralleled by many radio fans these days. They are on the trail of the noises in the phones, those "frying noises," you know, for if you are a radio enthusiast you have undoubtedly heard them, too. In some cases the noises continue after a complete and thorough overhauling has ben accomplished. Some of those on the inside have traced the "noise" to polarization which is constantly taking place in the commonly used dry "B" battery. A liquid battery, it is said, does not produce these characteristics because this internal action does not take place. Another thing in their favor, also, is the lire of such a battery, and as radio editor of this section, I am only too willing to place my approval on such a battery. Through investigation I have found that the Willard Storage battery dealers in Glendale are soon to have a supply of these batteries in stock, and Mr. Cizek has assured me that all will be perfectly welcome to come and inspect them. Mr. Cizek is proprietor of the battery establishment on the corner of Colorado and Brand. The new rechargeable battery has each cell enclosed in an individual jar made of glass. It also has extra heavy plates and insulated with the Willard threaded rubber insulation. The whole group of cells are connected in series with burned on lead connectors. The batteries are not in at present, but notification of their arrival will be given through this column, so that all members of the radio club and other enthusiasts may take advantage of Mr. Cizek's offer and give it a personal inspection. The threaded rubber insulation mentioned is of uniform density and thickness and is of the same material used in the Willard storage batteries and radio batteries. There are thousands of tiny threads in the threaded rubber insulation, which serve as minute wicks which conduct the electrolyte from one plate to the other much more evenly and quickly than it could pass through a wooden sheet, however thin it might be cut. And there lies the success which the Willard battery has attained with this type plate. They prevent spotting of plates and other troubles too well known to the experienced operator. They permit uniform diffusion of electrolyte, which in turn makes a uniform flow of current possible.

The ordinary conception of a storage battery is a box covered with some sort of sticky paint. Most of them were not intended for parlor display. But the fact that neat and finished appearance is appreciated by all radio bugs will be another attractive point in the battery above described. It is not only neat, but serves the purpose to the best advantage and is not bunglesome, nor does it weigh 500 pounds. The reason this battery is so neat and clean to handle is made possible by a new type one-piece rubber case which has been invented by the Willard company for radio purposes. It comes in the rough finish, but is of such quality that it may be highly polished and thereby make a wonderful addition to the radio set. Watch the columns for the announcement of the arrival of these batteries, so that you can get a chance to see them.

THE SET TO BE USED TONIGHT

For the benefit of those that would like to know what type set, aerial and ground will be used for the concert at the Tropico Presbyterian church this evening, following is a description: The aerial is 1 strand, 150 feet long strung in the shape of the letter "V." The ground is nothing more or less than a gas pipe which is the only obtainable ground at present. The set is to consist of a variable condenser, tickler, coil, one detector tube with 23 volts on the plate circuit, three amplifier units with 105 volts on the plate circuit of the three bulbs, and a magnavox. Now with the above material, if you are attending the concert, you will be able to see with what audibility and strength the signals will come in. The Tropico Presbyterian church is on the corner of Central and Laurel avenues, and the concert is open to all. A program was published in last evening's paper and from the lineup it looks like there is really going to be a treat in store for the audience.

THEORY CLASS SATURDAY

The next theory class will be held Saturday night, 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., as was voted upon by the class last Tuesday evening. The course of study will proceed where we left off Tuesday, which was with the aerial and crystal detector. Any news which you consider will be of interest to the rest of the class will be welcome.

PHUNNY STUFF

An unintentional broadcast resulted as follows: Jimmy, who had just erected his complete transmitting and receiving set, became quite chummy with a fellow down the street a ways who had had his set up for more time. Evidently this fellow took quite a liking to Jimmy, for he arranged a future date with Jimmy, saying he would come over and bring some of that Liquidy stuff which Mr. Volstead won't touch. All the arrangements were made via wireless. Latest information from Jimmy states that there were 17 present at his party.

A young man by the name of David Lay was making his first voyage south and wasn't quite used to static interference. The ship was on its way to Porto Rico when passenger ship Philadelphia passed on her way to New York. Among the passengers on board the Philadelphia was an eminent citizen of San Juan who had been in bad health and was on his way to see a specialist in New York. He passed away while the ship was at sea, however, and the operator of the Philadelphia called upon Mr. David Lay to relay certain traffic for him to and from San Juan as he was out of range and could no longer work San Juan direct. The static was pretty bad and burst after burst was so loud that some of the signals were made inaudible. San Juan, in answer to a message to the Philadelphia, was pushing the dots and dashes at a fair rate of speed and right in the last word of the message came a big burst of static. This is what David Lay had:

"Funeral in New York. Preserve body in —ine."

Thus the message stood and it occurred to the operator that the word must be wine, so it was relayed to the Philadelphia:

"Funeral in New York. Preserve body in wine."

Mr. David Lay was later called upon the carpet to explain. Needless to say, the message was obeyed, as this occurred in the days before Volstead ruled, and the San Juan citizen traveled to New York in style. But where the trouble came in the word should have been "brine."

SMALL RECEIVER

Talk about inventing and constructing small receivers, how's this? A receiving set which has proved itself, and which is only one inch square, has been completed by Alfred J. De Giovanni, a 14-year-old freshman in the union high school at Knoxville, Pa. It is said that this set has recorded signals distinctly from a large broadcasting station in East Pittsburg, a distince of about fifteen miles. There is also another set now perfected by still another inventor which is all compact in the handle of a fountain pen. What are we coming to? Soon we will have radio sets in our tie pins, cavities in our teeth or concealed in birds eggs. We will have to train sand fleas to operate them, too. What's next?

BARKER BROS RADIO KJC

Barker Bros.' new radiophone broadcasting station was opened last Wednesday and was formally dedicated at that date. The new station will broadcast on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11:30 to 12 o'clock; and on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m., and on Sundays from 1 to 2 p. m. The Barker Bros. station will be included in the program on the front page on the days they are scheduled to send.

HINTS

If you have your own charging apparatus for charging batteries, and also have a hydrometer with which you test the cells, take this hint: When testing the electrolyte with the hydrometer unscrew the cap from only one cell at a time as, if you take all the caps off of the cells at the same time and then test the electrolyte, and when you replace the electrolyte, if you have forgotten the cell from which you took it and you get it in the wrong cell you will have your cells unbalanced.

Mgr. Deal of Pacific T. & T. Co., Makes Important Announcement

An announcement of particular interest was made today by Manager Fred Deal of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, and relates to an arrangement just concluded whereby local telephone users and others in this community may become partners in the business by the purchase of stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company through the assistance of the local organization. Manager Fred Deal says:

"In response to the many inquiries from our subscribers as to how stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company could be purchased, we have just concluded arrangements whereby these securities are made available for purchase at the current market price by the people of this community, in small or large amounts, either on a cash basis or a very reasonable deferred payment plan.

"Details of this plan are handled through our local business office for the convenience of our patrons and the public. We hope by opening this channel for the assistance of local investors, to contribute to the promotion of community and national thrift and to the spread of a broader knowledge of investment generally. Our action should also facilitate and strengthen the activities of all sound and helpful investment and financial agencies.

"The nation is our customer. Whatever promotes the prosperity of the nation promotes our prosperity. The telephone is more than any other, a nation-wide utility. Telephone service, to be adequate, cannot be limited by any political boundaries narrower than the boundaries of the nation. It must reach across the continent and connect not only the cities and larger communities, but the crossroads, settlements and scattered farms. No individual part of the development can be considered only with reference to itself, but each part must be considered in its relation to the whole. It is easy to understand that the development of the service anywhere adds to the value of the service everywhere.

"A large majority of the employes engaged in the telephone business are already partners through the purchase of American Telephone and Telegraph company stock under plans similar to the one which we are now introducing to the public in Glendale.

"With only one-sixteenth of the world's population, the United States now has two-thirds of the world's telephones and we feel that by making the securities of this nation-wide business available to our local patrons at the current market price, either on cash basis or a reasonable deferred payment plan, a real step in the direction of the encouragement of national thrift on a permanent and constructive basis has been taken, and we welcome the inquiries of any of our patrons to whom this plan is of interest.

"The net earnings of the American company during the past 21 years, after providing for all interest due, have averaged $10 per share per year. For 40 years the American company and its predecessor have paid dividends to the public of not less than $7.50 per share per year. For more than 14 years payments have been $8 per share per year. Nine dollars is now the established annual rate paid in quarterly amounts of $2.25 per share on January, April, July and October 15th. Nine per cent on the company's capital stock is less than 5 per cent on the company's equity in the property of the Bell system.

"Year after year the earnings remaining after the payment of dividends to the stockholders and the capital stock premiums received as above stated have been kept in the business as surplus and reserves. These have been invested in new telephone property which has increased the usefulness and earning capacity of the entire Bell system.

"American Telephone stock, practically speaking, is the stock of the telephone industry of the nation. It is all of one class. The par value of each share is $100.

"The total par value of American Telephone stock outstanding (including subscriptions for $83,775,000 of new stock offered at par to stockholders of record May 20, 1921), is approximately $534,000,000.

"For this stock the company has received (including the final payment due November 7, 1921, upon a small part of the new stock) more than $571,000,000.

"Thus the excess of receipts over par value, known as capital stock premiums is more than $37,000,000.

"The value of the assets underlying the capital stock of the American company, including its interest in the assets of its Associated companies, based on cost, is more than $185 for each share of stock.

"More than 186,000 individuals own American Telephone stock. More than half this number are women. Over 60,000 stockholders own from 1 to 5 shares each. Nearly 140,000 own 25 shares or less each, and more than 165,000 own less than 100 shares each. Comparatively speaking, there are no large holdings, no stockholder owning as much as one per cent of the total stock. The average number of shares held by stockholders is 30.

"The annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and statements of the structure of the Bell system are on file at our business office and are available to all of our patrons who are interested."

FISHING DE LUX IS NOVEL PLAN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 5.—Floating piers for mackerel fishing are being planned at three Southern California beaches, according to Louis Breer.

Private capital has been enlisted to provide one barge for Redondo Beach, similar to the one now anchored off Long Beach. It will be 30x20 feet, and will accommodate about 50 persons. Fees will be charged for transportation from the shore to the barge and for the privilege of fishing.

Santa Monica ad Newport Beach men are also booking fishing barges at those points. According to Breer, the promoters plan to have the floats ready for business June 1.

BORN IN MIDST OF FIRE ALARM

OAKLAND, Cal., May 5.—J. Brown rang in a call for the fire department.

The fire chief was the first to arrive in his high power machine.

When the fire trucks and engines arrived, they were met at the door by the chief to make as little noise as possible.

"A baby's being born," the chief told them.

The firemen made as little noise as possible, and the baby was born about the time the blaze was extinguished.

All in all, P. Brown will probably remember the day for many years.

Rock of Ages

Few are the things which endure the passage of Time.

The "Changing World" is the order of today. We must needs cling to those things which spell permanence, pinning our faith to the few institutions which, out of the vastness of Time, have remained—and will remain—unchanged.

THE PERPETUAL CARE of BEAUTIFUL GRAND VIEW MEMORIAL PARK

is one of the "rocks" which will exist long after our little cycle of activity has passed, and to insure the permanent performance of tender care, a fund has been set aside for this purpose alone.

Thus it is, in fulfilling the last wishes of a beloved one, selecting a resting place in this "Garden of Sleep," you are preparing, not only for today, but for all time to come.

All of the lots in this lovely little Cemetery among the Hills are perfectly drained. They are reasonably priced, and beautiful beyond compare.

Our private car is at your disposal for inspection of the grounds.

Terms of payment are gladly made.

TAD IS TRAPPED BY HIS BOASTING

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

I just tell you what, Tad Coon didn't waste any time when that man tumbled him out of the airplane where he'd been imprisoned all that night and most of the day before; he just hot-pawed it for Dr. Muskrat's Pond.

He drank and drank and drank, but he couldn't get enough water inside of him. He didn't care how cold it was, he just had to wallow round in it. And he caught himself frogs enough to feed a family, and a mud-puppy, and a mouse, and still he wanted to keep on eating. Only he couldn't hold any more. So he lay down on Dr. Muskrat's flat stone, that was all warmed up in the sun, without even stopping to roll the mud off him, and snored as if he hadn't been asleep for a week.

He snored so loudly that even Bobby Robin's shrill voice couldn't wake him. "Tad, Tad," complained the bird, "those men are taking your bug all apart. They're taking it away behind Tommy Peele's big wagon. Tell 'em you'll see that it doesn't bother any one. 'Cause the news had spread around and all sorts of folks are coming from ever and ever so far away just to see it. If it's not here they'll think we've been lying. Please, Tad."

But the more he heard the tighter Tad squinched his eyes together. They could take it for all of him. He'd had enough of airplanes. The sooner it was gone the better pleased he'd be. He felt sure it was just a trap for curious folks like men and coons. Why else were its sides so slippery-smooth you couldn't climb out once you were in it? He noticed that man had brought another—to rescue him in case he got caught again. That's what Tad thought.

Besides, was he going to tell Bobby what a scrape he was in all the time he was sitting in that pesky machine and acting so important? I guess not. Only he knew he'd let something slip if he started talking. So he had to keep still.

And there he lay, snoring as loud as he could when any one was round. "I wish it were night," he growled under his whiskers. "Then that busybody of a bird would put his head under his wing and I could wake up again. I'm just trapped another way this time. Or else I wish something very exciting would happen so he'd forget all about me. Aourgh! My nose is getting all sunburned——"

He Snored So Loudly That Even Bobby Robin's Shrill Voice Couldn't Wake Him

Then his ears pricked up in spite of him. Something was happening—again!

FORMER CHAMPION PLAYS INDOORS TO GET READY FOR ANOTHER TRY AT TITLE

Undaunted by the fact that many of her most dangerous rivals have been playing throughout the winter on southern links, Miss Alexa Stirling, women's national golf champion in 1916, 1919 and 1920, is confident that she has a good chance this year of winning back her title, although her job of selling bonds has kept her in New York city all winter. Miss Marion Hollins won last year. Miss Stirling has kept herself in condition by playing almost daily in a specially devised golf net stop in a department store. "This practice hardens the hands and muscles," says Miss Stirling, "and makes it just that much easier for me to get back into form."

THE MOTOR IN CANADA

WINNIPEG, Man., May 4.—There are slightly under 9,000,000 people in Canada. There are approximately 500,000 motor vehicles. This means one motor vehicle to every 18 inhabitants. The report of the Dominion government bureau of statistics shows that in the last year over 60,000 new motor vehcles have been licensed.

"The most surprising increase," said a provincial government official, "occurred in the western provinces. Saskatchewan, which but a comparatively short time ago was a playground for the buffalo, today has 62,658 motor vehicles, mostly automobles. Manitoba has 40,420, Alberta 38,750 and British Columbia 21,000."

RUM SMUGGLING AND WAR

GLASGOW, May 4.—Whiskey smuggling into the United States from Great Britain will cause war between the two countries unless it is stopped, the British Women's Temperance association decided at its convention here. "We must end the traffic," one speaker said. "If the government does not act upon our appeal, it means the breaking of Anglo - American friendship."

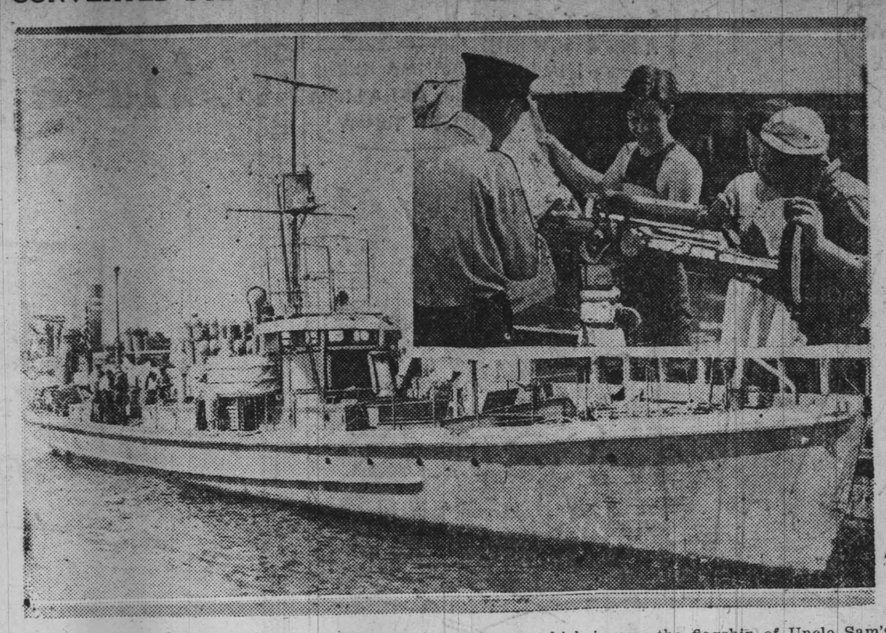
ASTONISHED BRITISH

LONDON, May 4.—The English people are beginning to believe America is "day by day, and in every way, getting better and better."

Their surprise was great when they read that an American senator had "called" Sir Arthur Balfour for misuse of the English language.

Nothing troubles some people more than looking for trouble and not finding it.

CONVERTED SUB CHASER NOW SCOUTS FOR RUM SMUGGLERS



Here's the good ship Mahalatos, former submarine chaser, which is now the flagship of Uncle Sam's proposed squadron of bootlegger and rum smuggler chasers in the vicinity of the port of New York. Sea-going hootch sellers, beware, for the Mahalatos carries a wicked one-pounder and an armed crew of twelve. The fast light draft vessel is shown above, also Master's Mate D. J. Oates training a gun crew. "Yo-ho! and a bottle of ginger ale," sang Jack Dillon, ex-prize fighter and a member of the crew, as the converted sub chaser started out to scuttle the hopes of bold and daring rum pirates.

MARY WHO LAMB MADE FAMOUS STILL LIVES

Little Feller Was Mutton Long Ago Still Regretted

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA, Eng., May 5.—

"Mary had a little lamb,
"Its fleece was white as snow,
And everywhere that Mary went,
The lamb was sure to go."

Mary, the very Mary of the best-known of nursery rhymes, has been found after all these years. The lamb has long since passed the way of all mutton and for all we know may be fattening on celestial fodder against day when Mary rejoins it.

But Mrs. Mary Hughes, a dainty Dresdenesque figure of seventy summers, confesses she is the original of the poem. She maintains and has documents to prove that she and the little lamb of the poem went to school together many years ago.

The encyclopedia has always given Horatio Hale, an American, credit for penning the poem beginning "Mary had a little lamb," but Mrs. Hughes says this is all wrong. A Miss Burls, she says, wrote the poem, after witnessing the incidents it describes.

Mrs. Hughes, who was a farmer's daughter, used to care for the family ewes and lambs. One of her particular pets, she says, was a little lamb named Nellie, which she used to feed from a bottle. Due to much care and bathing this lamb became snow white and was most affectionate.

"One day," said Mrs. Hughes, closing her eyes and seeming to see again those child-hood scenes, "I started for school, and little Nellie, the lamb, gambolled along after me. Nothing I could do would persuade her to return to the farm.

"She came right along to the school, and in the door. It made the children laugh and play to see the lamb at school—exactly as the poem reads. The teacher, a Miss Coward, was very kind, but insistent that the lamb must leave. Finally I had to take Nellie home."

No little interest for those of us who were brought up on the poem attaches to what happened to the lamb after it was expelled from school that bright summer's day.

It grew up, as even nursery lambkins must, and eventually became the mother of fat twins. Mrs. Hughes still cared for it and the following year, Nellie did better, with triplets. Later, the ertwhile lamb passed from couplets to cutlets, all unaware of its fame.

Nellie was driven to Wrexham market and finis was written to its poetic career with a butcher's sign,

"WELSH MUTTON."

The burglar climbed through the open window, entered the drawing room, and hid behind a curtain.

Hardly had he concealed himself before the youngest daughter of the house had a piano lesson. An hour later—at 6 o'clock, to be precise—her little brother had a long and spirited tussle with a shrilly protesting violin.

At 7 o'clock the elder girl had an hour's singing lesson, and at 8 o'clock the elder boy began practicing painstakingly but with indifferent success, a particularly maddening little trill on the flute.

At 9 o'clock they all assembled and played and sang in what they fondly but erroneously imagined to be harmony.

It was then that the burglar rushed forth, threw himself prostrate on the floor, and begged to be arrested and lodged in a place of safety.

"Where's the editor?" roared the irate citizen, as bounced into the office of the village weekly. "Want to see him personally?" queried the office boy. "Of course "I do," answered the irate citizens. "I'm going to thrash him within an inch of his life. See?" "Oh, all right!" answered the boy. "Just take a seat, please. There are three others ahead of you. If you watch you will see 'em chucked through the window one by one. When the third comes down, you can go up." But the visitor had changed his mind.

REFUSED TO HAVE CLOTHES LOCKED UP WITH HIM

Convicted Highway Robber Insists Apparel Is Innocent and Wins

KINSTON, N. C., May 5.—Claude Bush, convicted highwayman, went to state's prison from here in a pair of overalls and his undershirt. Bush scored in a battle of wills with Jailer Thomas Conway.

When sentenced to five years for the kidnapping and robbing of a Greenville taxi driver, Bush sent his only suit to his home at Elizabeth City. If the state insisted upon taking his person, it should not have his clothes, he declared.

Conway said Bush should make the trip to the penitentiary, a hundred miles away, in a barrel. But Bush in a barrel would not fit in an automobile seat, nor could the combination be squeezed into a railroad coach seat without exposing more of the prisoner's adamesque charms than the law would allow. Conway had to furnish the triumphant Bush pants. Prior to leaving the jail here Bush had worn less clothing than a Fiji Islander at a beach party.

Following the adjournment of the peace conference in Versailles M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, returned to America on the same trip of the George Washington which brought President Wilson home. Whether in honor of the victorious nation represented on the passenger list or whether in simple mad taste, moving picture entertainments were provided for each evening of the voyage. Now no one is above moving pictures, be he of whatever walk of life you may name, providing the movies represent any walk of life. But these movies were of the most obnoxious propaganda type, showing war as war never was or ever hoped to be. M. Jusserand, along with the President and others, provided a patient nightly audience to these affairs. "You—you like these movies, M. Jusserand?" a fellow sufferer asked after one performance. The ambassador to America from France looked out over the rolling Atlantic: "I have crossed this ocean some dozens of times," answered he. "And never—until I witnessed the cinema below—have I come near to being sick."

CONFUCIUS WAS A RADICAL OF OLD CATHAY

Dangerous Thought Debate in Japan Reveals Character

TOKYO, (Bay Mail to United Press)—Poor old Confucius!

At this late day, when he can't talk back, he is being branded as a bolshevist by orators in the Japanese Diet.

Confucius was the first communist. He beat Lenine and Trotsky to it by a good many thousand years. At least, that's what Representative Takio Isawa insisted in the Japanese House, during the debate on the "Dangerous Thoughts" bill.

Izawa, opposing the bill proposing to punish persons who think dangerous thoughts asked the Diet what it proposed to do about Confucius.

"Does the government propose to attempt to regulate Confucianism?" he asked. "Does it propose to try to regulate Christianity? When the government undertakes to control 'dangerous thoughts' it is tackling a mighty big job. When Buddhism and Christianity first came to Japan they were then regarded as 'dangerous thoughts'—as 'dangerous' as communism thoughts are regarded here today. The ideas preached by Confucius were similar to those entertained by the Communists today—and if we are going to regulate dangerous thoughts, we will have to regulate him."

"But Confucius has been dead a long time," another member interrupted.

"This bill is retroactive," rejoined Izawa. "I insist that if you are going to pass it, you will have to be prepared to put Confucius in jail for seven years, the penalty it provides for thinking 'dangerous thoughts.'"

The bill didn't pass, so Confucius can keep out of a Tokyon calaboose for a while longer, anyway.

GREENVILLE LOSES ABALONE SMITH

GREENVILLE, Cal., May 5.—"Abalone" Smith, charged with robbery, was put into the 12 by 10 jail here, and securely locked and bolted in by Deputy Sheriff Patterson.

When Patterson came to get his prisoner the next day, the bird had flown. The affair was surrounded by large quantities of mystery. No bars were sawed, the locks were intact. Then it was discovered that "Abalone" had climbed on his cot, and escaped by "histing" up the roof.

THE EVENING STORY

SHOES OF JOY

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

When Molly Gage came limping off the train that night she was joyfully surprised to find her friend, Fanny Cooper, to whom she had come visiting, waiting for her with a cab.

"I'll thank you for this as long as I live," she murmured as she sank gratefully upon the rusty cushions. "You don't know how I've been dreading the walk to your house. Is there anything comforting and nice that you don't think of, you amazing woman? When I got your letter inviting me for this visit I jumped as high as my poor, tired feet would let me."

"You dear child," exclaimed Fanny Cooper. "You should have had the invitation long ago if I had thought there was any hope of your accepting it. You know that my door and my arms are always open to you. But when you went away you remember, dear, that you said you never wanted to come back, and never would of your own will. However, what ails your feet?"

"Standing," Molly answered. "Standing from 8 to 6 every day in the year except holidays and Sundays, with two weeks out for vacation. That has been my schedule for two years. My feet are a size bigger than they used to be, and I was never one to pinch. Oh, it isn't as bad as it sounds, for once you get used to it you don't mind standing at all. I've never fainted once. Some girls do, you know, but I'm naturally strong—"

"You don't look it—not just now, any way," Fanny Cooper said, quietly. "You used to have the prettiest color. Evidently you need more fresh air than you are getting. Wasn't there anything else you could do besides working in a store?"

Molly sghed.

"There didn't seem to be. It isn't as if I were gifted or specially trained. And then there was Mary Van Loan—you remember Mary? She works at Tracy's too, and recommended me for the place. I don't know what I should have done without Mary. She's going to be married soon now."

The interior of the Cooper house presented even a greater welcome to Molly than the outside. She had a cooling bath after the smudgy heat of the train, a tasty supper, rare to an inmate of Mrs. Nolan's boarding house, and a wide bed, fragrant with rose leaves.

When she awakened at 6 next morning, her usual rising hour she remembered with a thrill of gladness that it was not necessary to spring up and get ready for the first table. Closing her eyes she was soon asleep again, and this time did not arouse until 9 o'clock. "I'm ashamed," she apologized as she hurried downstairs. "Why didn't you call me? I must have inconvenienced you terribly."

"Not at all," Fanny smiled. "Will doesn't have to be at his office before 8 , and I waited to eat with you. How will you have your toast—with cream or dry?"

"Oh, with cream! How luxurious it sounds. I don't believe I've seen any since I left the country. Fanny, if you knew how heavenly it seemed to be here at home again. I still think of it as home, although I suppose the place ceased to be that when Aunt Ellen died. Does any one live in the old house now?"

"No, it has been sold, but the purchaser allows it to stand empty. It's kept up very nice, though. I'll take you out to see. The roses are a perfect riot a little later. At this time the lilacs are just coming out."

"The lilacs!" Molly exclaimed. Then she smiled back her tears. "If you could see my feet you'd laugh," she added, irrelevantly, to change the subject. "I've got on the shabbiest pair of old red felt slippers! But I knew you wouldn't mind, and I had to have comfortable feet at any cost."

"Nobody will notice them," promised Mrs. Cooper.

Over the breakfast Molly grew almost merry. She felt rested, free and at east. Through the dining-room window, open to the breeze, came the fragrance of May and the sounds of the comfortable, though rather slipshod old village, which had been her home until her aunt's death. It might have continued to be her home even then if Cal Davis had asked her to marry him, as she had hoped he would. They had known each other for years and he had always been her ideal of what a man should be. However, he had let her go without a word to stay her, and Molly, little less than heartbroken, had vowed never to return. She would go to the city and succeed and show Cal that he was not necessary to her happiness. Now she had come back very much as she had gone away, for the thought of him was still big in her life. But she had waited until he, as she supposed, was out of Wheat Corners forever.

She and Fanny Cooper talked about everything and everybody except Cal Davis. His name was not mentioned. Once or twice Molly feared Fanny seemed about to utter his name, but she forebore just in time.

The sudden entrance of a woman startled them both. Old, spectacled and dressed for motoring, she approached the table and loomed decisively over them both. "Good morning, Fanny," she said. "How do you do, Miss Gage? You see I know all about your being here. Mrs. Cooper hasn't talked anything but your visit since she heard you were coming. I'm a newcomer myself, so I don't know you as well as the rest do; still, I hope we'll be friends. Fanny, when you've introduced me properly I'll just say that I've come to take you for a ride out Sawmill Run way. Such a morning as this shouldn't be wasted indoors, to my thinking."

"And to mine," Fanny said. "Come, Molly, let's go just as we are, without hats. We don't need coats, it's so warm. This is a delightful pleasure, Mrs. Emmons."

It was not until they were comfortably seated in the car and the chauffeur was whisking them out of town at the rate of 30 miles an hour that Molly Gage remembered her feet. Horrified, she glanced down at them and pinch Fanny's arm. Fanny's head shake and warning glance was response enough, but later she whispered while Mrs. Emmons was speaking to her man, "Never mind your shoes. She's near-sighted and we shan't see a soul."

In spite of her unhappy feet, Molly enjoyed herself hugely. The lovely sights, the flowing air, the motion of the great car put life and joy into her.

The noon whistle was blowing as they entered Main street, and every inhabitant of Wheat Corners seemed to be going somewhere as rapidly as possible. There were teams, cars and bicycles besides, increasing the tangle of traffic. To Molly, used to city rush, it did not look very impressive, and she was astonished when Thomas suddenly brought the car to a standstill behind a load of quarry stones. Two minutes later, when the load had got out of the way and Thomas tried to start, the car refused to move. He did all he could, but something had evidently ceased to function and the car was as stationary as if it had grown fast to the asphalt. Worst of all, it was blocking the entire street and the solitary traffic man was getting in a huff. He came up and spoke to Mrs. Emmons.

"What's the matter here?" he demanded with a magnificent flourish of his club.

Mrs. Emmons looked indomitable. "If you can unmesh these gears, do it. If not, leave it to Thomas," she said.

Thomas was wiping sweat from his crimson brow when Molly, glancing helplessly around at the curious crowd, caught the keen, clear eyes of a man taller than the rest, who was wonderingly regarding her. Instantly he lifted his hat and pressed forward until he was close to the car.

"Can I be of any assistance?" he asked.

Mrs. Emmons caught at his voice as a drowning woman catches at a straw. "You can if you know anything about cars," she said.

"I sell them," Cal Davis replied, smiling.

Within two minutes he had offered all the first aid necessary and the big car was pulling out of the tangle. Within two minutes more they were safe home.

"Cal Davis!" Fanny muttered. "Where did he come from?"

Then, somehow, Fanny and Will melted away and Molly and Cal were alone. He moved over and took the chair beside her. "Do you know," he said earnestly, "I was a fool to ever let you get away from me! Even though I didn't earn enough for two, I do now, and—and, Molly, Wheat Corners is the end of my route. Would you be willing to live in your Aunt Ellen's old house if it was all done over and got ready? I've owned it for some time, just on your account. You wouldn't think I had that much sentiment about me, would you?"

Molly did not answer at once. As she sat thinking over what he had said and trying to realize it all, Fanny turned on the phonograph in the room behind them. Out on the moonlit air came a thin, sweet soprano, "I walked the way of life in shoes of joy," it sang.

Suddenly Molly began to laugh.

MME. LEBAUDY AND HER DAUGHTER TO WHOSE FATHER-IN-LAW SHE IS ENGAGED, SO PARIS REPORTS SAY

The Lebaudy family is in the limelight again. The widow of the wealthy and eccentric "emperor of the Sahara," whom she killed at their home at Westbury, Long Island, because she objected to his attitude toward her daughter, is reported engaged to Henry Sudreau, the father of her son-in-law. Sudreau is a well known French detective. His son, Roger, married Mme. Lebaudy's daughter, Jacqueline, in Paris on Februray 21. The wedding bells will not ring out, it is reported, until Mme. Lebaudy proves to her daughter that her young husband loves her for herself alone and not for the millions left by Jacques Lebaudy. This photograph of mother and daughter was made the last time they were in America.

BOLEN REALTY CO. BECOMES AGENT FOR WOODLANDS

Changes Offices to Newport Company Headquarters

The Bolen Realty company has just taken over the agency for the Verdugo Woodlands improved and vacant lands, according to a statement issued recently by Mr. J. L. Bolen, proprietor of this active organization. Along with this statement comes the announcement that this company is changing its offices from 206 West Broadway, where it has been for the past several months, to 115 West Broadway, to the headquarters of the F. P. Newport company.

"Although we will make a specialty of Verdugo Woodlands property," said Mr. Bolen this morning, "we will continue to handle all kinds of real estate, and will do a general real estate, loans and insurance business, such as we have conducted ever since coming here."

Mr. Bolen has purchased real estate in Verdugo Woodlands and has erected a home there. He is, therefore, vitally interested in the doings of that section, having been a booster for that locality ever since moving there. Mr. Bolen is president of the Verdugo Woodlands Improvement association, and is one of the leading workers for the securing of gas for that locality.

Another excursion will be run by the F. P. Newport company from Los Angeles to the Woodlands. This will be done on account of the wonderful success experienced during the last two Sundays when similar excursions were conducted. The luncheon to be held Sunday at the Woodlands will be sort of a get-together affair and all those who desire to attend should telephone Mr. Bolen Friday or Saturday at Glendale 2163. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone in Glendale to be present at this "get together" party and to behold the wonderful beauties of Verdugo Woodlands.

S. P. INVITES HOMESTEADERS

Principal features of larger land settlement projects in California are set forth in a digest the Southern Pacific company has just prepared and sent to its eastern representatives. With the essential facts thus at hand the railroad's general agents will be prepared promptly to provide prospective homeseekers with the information they desire.

Many inquiries are received by the company's eastern agents concerning California farming lands and it is expected that requests for information will increase in view of the fact that the company is running advertisements in eastern farm papers and magazines calling attention to what California lands offer in attractions and advantages.

The company through its agents advises the homeseeker that he should purchase land only after he has personally investigated and satisfied himself that conditions meet his requirements, and recommends that the prospective purchaser, if uninformed and inexperienced, avail himself of the expert advice of competent authorities such as county farm advisors, the state division of land settlement, the state real estate commission, and the University of California's College of Agriculture.

The digest gives the following information concerning each project: name of tract, location, nearest Southern Pacific station, name and address of land company, acreage in tract, acreage unsold, average size of farm units, character of soil, principal crops, source of water supply, cost of irrigation, certainty of supply of water, cost of leveling and checking land, drainage conditions, cost of average house, number of families on tract, schools and churches, price per acre, terms, nearest chamber of commerce, name of county farm advisor, and miscellaneous data.

TENDER MEMORIES OF MR. BENNETT ARE RECALLED

Friends and Neighbors Miss His Kindly Friendship

That James Bennett, who passed to his reward Thursday morning, will be much missed by his neighbors and friends is evident from the following anonymous triubute of appreciation which has been given to the Glendale Daily Press for publication:

"With the passing of James Bennett of 530 West Colorado street, a most loveable man has stepped across the great divide. He was a good citizen, a devoted husband, a true friend, kindly to all, always cheerful and patient. His smiling, pleasant face will be sadly missed by his loving wife and many friends but to live in the hearts of those we leave behind us is not to die."

FOUR STATE PICNICS

There's an excellent line of refrigerators now being shown at Porter's—drop in and look them over!

Teapots that are made of metal, if unused for some time, will often give a musty flavor to the tea when next used. This may be prevented by placing a lump of sugar in the teapot before putting it away.

It is now generally accepted in all good recipes tested and given by competent baking teachers, that sifted flour is always meant and should always be used in following the recipes. It is important to follow this rule. Always use sifted flour when measuring, because sifted flour usually makes about one-fifth more bulk than unsifted flour.

The three terms used in measuring baking powder are level, rounding and heaping teaspoons. A level teaspoon is the bowl of the teaspoon filled to the level of the edges of the spoon. (To be used with 1 cup of flour.) A rounding teaspoon is equal to two level teaspoons (with 2 cups flour). A heaping teaspoon is equal to two rounding teaspoons, or four level teaspoons (with 4 cups of flour).

After the roast has been well basted with butter or suet, put it in a well heated oven to brown it over, thus keeping the juice inside; after this it may cook more slowly. A roast of from 4 to 6 pounds will require an hour and one-half to be properly done and leave it a little rare inside.

THE BOY AND THE SECRET BROTHERHOOD

I know he drew her picture on the board
When she was gone to dinner and he poured
Red pepper on the stove and put a snake
Into the water so it would make
The scholars scream, but she don't know that we Belong to the same brotherhood and he Knows I will never tell on him and so
She need not ask for she will never know
That it was him. Because I've sworn you see,
Wild horses will not drag it out of me.

And if I broke a window and he knew
I did it he would have to be as true
As I have been to him and he would shed
The last drop of his blood before he said
That it was me and if he told he might
Be flayed alive before tomorrow night
By others of the brotherhood who'd come
At dead of night without the beat of drum
And capture him where he hid in his room
And bear him off to meet his awful doom.

And Henry Bemis says that he don't dare
To hardly whisper secrets to the air
For fear somebody heard and they would make Him go just like a martyr to the stake.
And up in Henry's father's barn where we Hold all our meetings there's a skull to see
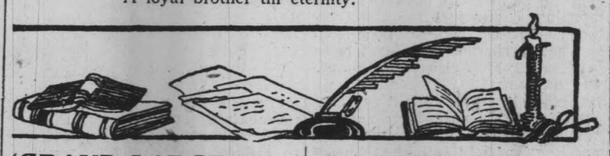
And show you what would happen if you break
The oath which every boy there has to take,
And kiss the almanac and swear to be
A loyal brother till eternity.



'GRAND LARCENY' AT THE GLENDALE

"Grand Larceny," the new photoplay at the Glendale theatre, is a Goldwyn offering that presents a phase of modern life that many are all too familiar with. It tells the story of a social parasite who carries on his depredations outside the pale of the law. The robber of property can be put in prison, and the man he has injured can obtain some legal satisfaction. But what balm is there for the man who has been robbed of his wife's love?

That is the situation raised in "Grand Larceny," and superbly presented by an excellent cast of Goldwyn players. Claire Windsor, a new-comer to Goldwyn pictures, is the woman who is made a plaything of two men. The role of her husband is played by Elliott Dexter, who also appears for the first time in a Goldwyn picture.

Albert Payson Terhune, the author of "Grand Larceny" has developed his story to an unusual denouement in which both men discover that their prey is not a piece of property that may be bought and sold, but a woman who emerges from her ordeal the mistress of her own soul.

Wallace Worsley directed the picture with much insight for the emotional values to be brought out. The many exquisite interior scenes were made from designs by Cedric Gibbons, the Goldwyn art director.

In addition to the Goldwyn production, "Grand Larceny," featuring Elliott Dexter and Claire Windsor, there will be a preview of the six-part Rupert Hughes' production, "Remembrance," written and directed by Rupert Hughes, with an all-star cast including Claude Dillingwater, Patsy Ruth Miller, Kate Lester, Helen Landis, and others—it is expected that the entire cast, Mr. Hughes and some 30 from the Goldwyn studios, will be present. The preview will go on at about 8:45 p. m.

He is truly the prize idiot who keeps still in his humble little place and expects promotion and looks for reward.

YE WHITE INN IS HOST TO EAST SIDERS

ability to take care of himself in any event.

While the dinner was being served Dr. Harrower, who was elected treasurer at the last meeting, was busy nailing members to the mast by collecting the $3 dues. Before the first course was removed he announced a membership of 50, of which 43 had paid, also stating that 43 were present. About that time two newcomers were discovered and introduced, viz. C. D. Crist, a baker of quality goods on East Broadway and H. V. Steele, who has come here from Lincoln, Neb., and who likes the town so much he is considering locating permanently. He is a member of the Commercial club of Lincoln.

Dr. Harrower responded for the Broadway lighting committee, stating it was waiting for detailed information relative to ornamental lighting posts, to be furnished by Councilman Clarence Kimlin and City Manager Reeves, and on receipt would present the matter to the East Broadway property owners. He roughly estimated the cost of the proposed electroliers at $1.50 per running foot of frontage and called for volunteers to promote the project.

Mayor Spencer Robinson reported a movement simmering on Colorado street for electroliers on that thoroughfare and suggested that the association get busy and enroll in the East Glendale Advancement association the property owners of that district to make up their 1000 of membership which President Ingledue figured will be required to put through the big projects planned for that sertion.

Relative to the Glendale Avenue improvement association, of which Harry Levey is president, Councilman Sam Davis reported an interview with that gentleman in which he promised to cooperate with the Advancement association in securing the electrolization of the Union Pacific on that avenue. The report was received with applause.

The work of the hotel committee appeared to be the prime interest of the association. Mrs. Tight, the chairman, was called upon but again stated she had no report to present but hoped the hard work the committee is doing would in a few days yield results which would be highly satisfactory to all concerned. In the meantime she asked for an enlargement of the committee. After being instructed by vote, President Ingledue appointed Messrs. Hayselden, McIntyre, Thom, Nelson, McOmber and Drs. T. C. Young and Henry R. Harrower to serve with Mrs. Tight and the other four members originally appointed. At the request of President Ingledue this committee remained for a session after the association adjourned.

A discussion of police patrols at night was precipitated by Dr. Stuart, who claimed to have lost several packing cases and a counter from an alley in the rear of his drug store, and who, in the course of his talk, admitted his store had been left with windows open or doors open more than once by employes. A general experience meeting followed in which many stories were told of stores left unlocked and found intact the next morning, one grocer finding three customers inside waiting to be served when he arrived to open up. In the face of such testimony Mayor Robinson said he would recommend to his fellow councilmen the discharge of the police force as an unnecessary expense in such a safe and sane town as Glendale. Both he and Councilman Davis told of the nightly rounds of a motorcycle cop who frequents the alleys and byways, Mr. Davis reminding members that two years ago the town had but one night patrolman and a desk sergeant.

Those present were Mayor Spencer Robinson, Charles E. Stanley, C. D. Crist, William Sapir, W. L. Truitt, W. E. Mercer, T. H. Addison, J. Addison, F. W. McIntyre, Peter Jensen, F. L. Fox, W. R. Vanderwood, P. J. Hayselden, Maurice Hartmann, O. W. Tarn, J. L. S. Perch, City Manager Reeves, C. U. Mandis, J. Howarth, C. W. Ingledue, Herman Nelson, J. K. Todd, H. V. Steele, J. H. Folz, Dr. C. F. Stuart, C. Fischer, W. W. Welch, Dr. Henry R. Harrower, W. H. Hyde, Henry Merz, John Lampert, Mrs. M. L. Tight, Mrs. John Lampert, Mrs. W. C. Fraley, R. M. Brown, S. A. Davis, Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Young and J. L. McOmber.

STORE COMPANY CLOSES BUSINESS IN TUJUNGA

Little Landers Organization Distributes Checks to Its Stockholders

TUJUNGA, May 5—Business of the Little Landers Store corporation, which recently disposed of its lots at the corner of El Centro and Sunset streets to Herman Breidt, is being closed up. George Buck is acting as agent for the corporation and is issuing checks to each of the 129 stockholders for the value of their stock with interest. The total sum to be distributed is $4,388.22, according to a statement issued by the directors of the corporation.

The corporation, which was organized in June, 1913, turned the store over to private ownership some time ago, following a fire which destroyed the original store and stock. The first board of directors of the corporation consisted of Earl P. Free, W. R. Mehard, George Slusher, Leo Lang, and James McGrath. Rev. W. H. Wieman was later elected to take the place left vacant by the death of Mr. McGrath.

Garman & Son has occupied the present building for some time, and will lease the building to be erected by Mr. Breidt in the near future.

O'Rourke Case Continued Today

A continuation of the case of William J. O'Rourke, et al., against the Haines Canyon Water company, continued from last Saturday, was brought up this morning before the state railroad commission at its courtroom in the Pacific Finance building, Los Angeles. M. V. Hartranft was placed on the stand at the beginning of the hearing on Saturday, by Geo. A. Hart, attorney for O'Rourke, and his testimony was not over when it was continued.

The hearing concerns a petition by the plaintiffs asking that the railroad commission compel the water company to extend service to their tract, located on the highway at the foot of Pine street. The water company contends that more territory cannot be taken in for service under present conditions without endangering the existing water supply.

Blown-out Fuses Repaired

Blown-out electric light fuses will be repaired by J. E. Trickey, collector for the Southern California Edison company, after 6 o'clock each evening. Mr. Trickey may be found at his home on Fitzgerald lane, south of Hill street, any evening except Sunday, or messages may be left at Dean's hardware store.

G. L. Aiken Purchases Interest

An interest in the Caldwell Feed & Fuel company has been purchased by G. L. Aiken, an uncle of J. A. Caldwell, and the firm's name changed to the Caldwell Feed & Supply company. Mr. Aiken has great faith in Tujunga's future and will be a valuable addition to the recently rounded business.

P.-T. A. Banquet Tonight

The executive board of the Parent-Teacher association will entertain the school trustees and the teachers at a banquet at the schoolhouse tonight at 7:30. A program has been arranged and the committee expects to make the dinner a notable one.

ARIZONAN BUYS LOCAL GROCERY

The Glendale Grocery company is the successor to Nussbaum's at Brand and California, J. R. Detweiler, a recent arrival from Phoenix, Ariz., taking over the stock, and is now managing the store. He is assisted by Mrs. Detweiler, H. W. Detweiler, Elwood Robinson and Mrs. Hilton. F. J. Kriskie, the popular butcher who was with Nussbaum's, will continue the management of the meat market.

Free delivery anywhere in the city, the best groceries and meat at right prices and every accommodation possible, are some of the advantages offered the buying public by this new firm. Mr. Detweiler is an experienced groceryman and says he is going to give the north end a grocery store of which they may well feel proud. He is very much pleased with Glendale and believes the city has a great future.

COLORADO MAN BUYS BAKERY

The Broadway Bakery at 116 West Broadway has been purchased by C. C. Kuver, of Trinidad, Colo., an expert baker and caterer, who is now in charge of this popular bakery.

Mr. Kuver will remodel the interior of the bakery and make other improvements which will enable him to serve the public in a very satisfactory manner. This bakery has maintained a good reputation and Mr. Kuver will, if possible, raise the standard established by the previous owner. Mr. Kuver has purchased other property in Glendale and will take an active interest in the affairs of the city. He comes highly recommended as a business man and a baker.

C. L. SMITH BACK FROM FISHING

Talk about trout! Listen to C. L. Smith, local dealer for the Chevrolet. Mr. and Mrs. Smith left Glendale Saturday afternoon and Chevroleted up to Little Bear lake, where they claim they had over so many limits of trout all staked out and fed up for the occasion.

After catching trout to their heart's content in Little Bear they jumped into the old Chev. and dropped down to Deep Creek, several miles east of the lake. Here they had all the fun they could stand in the way of stream fishing. Inside reports say this party returned with the car filled with beautiful trout, but in his modest way, Mr. Smith claims there were just two limits—one for himself and one for Mrs. Smith—and not a fish for the Chev.

The trip was made in a Chevrolet touring car and not a bit of trouble was experienced on the entire grind. It's quite a good pull up to Little Bear but the little car took it without a miss.

The Smiths are back in Glendale—returned last night—and Mr. Smith says he is ready to sell Chevrolets to all comers. He has just received three carloads of cars and is filling orders as fast as they come. He represents a good car and knows just how to sell them. In fact, he says the Chev. sells itself.
